WALL ST. CLOSE

Today

Administering Oxygen.
Easy on the Shooting.
What Whales Don't Know.
Why So Few Great Men?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE WORLD of high finance is administering, or promising, financial oxygen to Germany in rather small doses. Temporary closing of German and Hungarian banks may be a prelude to something more serious.

The German mark, victim of many ups and downs, is not in favor. Banks of London, Belgium and other places refuse to accept marks as money.

OUR GOOD OLD Wall street paused in its operations yesterday, unhappy brokers only selling 1,100,000 shares of stock in the whole day. Not enough commission to go around or bolster the price of exchange seats.

Perhaps tomorrow will be more rosy on both sides of the ocean. Perhaps not. But you will see prosperity come back far greater than ever. Just at present we are paying for the war. Many of us did not realize that it would have to be done, some day.

MR. GREEN, head of the American Federation of Labor, fears that unrest in the United States may become dangerous, and thinks industry should keep men working, that the unemployed may not become "objects of charity by committees of taxpayers."

However, industry, in order to employ men, must produce something. If there is nobody to buy what is produced, who is going to meet the payrolls?

In England, they have the dole to take care of their 2,500,000 unemployed, believing it to be cheaper than the cost of revolution.

WE ARE NOT going to have any revolution here, but somebody should warn the police chief of Providence, R. I., who orders his men controlling strikers:

"If anyone refuses to move, use your clubs. If there is persistent refusal, read the riot act, and then shoot."

Shooting is EASY, but its results are sometimes dangerous, especially when there are six or seven millions out of work, to sympathize with those that are shot.

ONE SHOOTING, of an Austrian archduke, started the big war. One match can blow up a big powder factory.

Shooting should be postponed as long as possible. Even the dole would be better than promiscuous shooting, in case the unemployed crowd happened not to take the shooting kindly.

We have trouble enough, without starting unnecessary shooting.

A HUGE WHALE plows the northern seas, swallowing millions of tiny marine creatures, on which he lives, knowing nothing of his past. Little does he dream that his ancester was a little creature, the "tree shrew," that you could carry in your vest pocket.

Still less can he imagine his future, or know that his body will be boiled down, and the oil sprayed on park trees to kill an epidemic of plant lice.

From tree shrew to whale 90 feet long, and from giant whale to plant lice destroyer, is a considerable change.

We human beings know about our past and future as little as the whale knows about his.

VICE PRESIDENT CURTIS will not run with President Hoover in 1932, preferring to run for the Senate. Whom would you recommend as a running mate for President Hoover? What name would add strength to the ticket?

Do a dozen names come to your mind, or do you wonder that, with 123,000,000 people around, there are so few men well enough known, sufficiently esteemed and trusted by the public, to make a nomination equal to an election?

We have many powerful men that attend to business and making money, few that attend to public affairs, outside of the crowd that goes into politics, also to make money.

NATIONAL DEMOCRATS suggest holding their 1932 convention on the Pacific Coast, in California, "Hoover's state." They call it a "brave gesture." More than that, it would be an educational expedition.

Take a Democrat across the continent, let him see the seals, "with piteous bark," on the rocks outside of San Francisco's Golden Gate, the oil, oranges, and real estate dealers, let him know all the country between the Atlantic and the Pacific, not forgetting the great new dam under construction, and he would come back a wiser Democrat, with a broader view.

IN THE NEXT 30 months, Uncle Sam will build 10 "destroyers," small, swift ships of 1,500 tons, planned to destroy submarines. They will cost $49,500,000.

In those 30 months, a foreign country could build 20 airplanes, 10 high speed planes carrying small bombs, 10 heavy bombers, that could promptly destroy our 10 new destroyers, also a few cruisers and battleships, and cost less than $1,000,000.

HOWEVER, governments, especially army and navy men, learn slowly. They are like the English king who after the musket, with powder and ball, came in said England must always rely on her bows and arrows for defense. Powder and bullets would never amount to much.

HUNGARIANS START HOP OVER SEA

Disregard Warning of Low Clouds in Attempt at Non-Stop Trip to Budapest

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., July 15.—(AP.)—George Endres and Alexander Magyar, reserve officers in the Hungarian army, took off in their plane, Justice to Hungary, from the airport at 1:48 p. m., Newfoundland time (12:18 Pittsburgh time) on a projected non-stop flight to Budapest.

Early this morning the two fliers decided to postpone the flight until later, owing to reports of unfavorable weather conditions, but during the forenoon more promising conditions were reported and they decided to hop off about noon as they had originally planned.

Dr. James H. Kimball, Weather Bureau meteorologist in New York, had been keeping them informed of conditions over the great circle route which they planned to traverse in their flight above the Atlantic. He notified them they would have favoring winds, but that there were low clouds over most of the Atlantic.

RACKET BOMB RAZES HOME

A bomb, its explosion heard over a seven-mile radius, demolished the home of Orrest Crystol, 620 Pittsburgh street, East McKeesport, early today as the tentacles of racketeering spread tighter around the barbecue business in Allegheny County.

Police and county detectives pointing to a long list of bombings involving Crystol and his relatives said the blast may have been the work of rival barbecue proprietors.

THIRD BOMB ATTACK

It was the third time in less than a year that a Crystol-owned building has been the target of bombers.

Last fall the Locust Lane barbecue, on the William Penn highway near the Monroeville road, owned by Crystol, was bombed. He escaped injury although the front of the building was wrecked.

Two weeks later a bomb was tossed at the Grandview Inn, owned by Robert (Red) Crystol, a brother, and located on the Lincoln highway near East McKeesport, while a celebration was in progress. The bomb, hurled from an automobile, missed the building and rolled harmlessly down a hill.

Orrest Crystol is the owner and proprietor of the Blue Moon dance hall and barbecue on the Lincoln

Hindenburg at Helm In Fight to Prevent Germany's Collapse

Reichsbank Discount Rate Raised; See Luther Ousted

By WALTER DIETZEL
International News Service.

BERLIN, July 15.—Paul von Hindenburg, 82-year-old president of the German republic, returned to Berlin from his summer estate in East Prussia today to lead the German people in a battle as desperate as any he waged on the the western front as field marshal in the frenzied war years.

Still the "staunch oak" of German public life despite his advanced years, President von Hindenburg lost no time in taking active control of the situation. His return was the opening gun in a battle of "self help" by means of which the German people hope to extricate themselves from the economic plight that has aroused the entire world.

REDISCOUNT RATE RAISED

As one of the first steps in the fight, the Reichsbank raised its discount rate from 7 to 10 per cent. The bank also raised the rate of interest on loans against collateral from 8 to 15 per cent. The gold coverage rate was lowered from 40 to 30 per cent.

At the same time it was indicated, Dr. Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, will be asked to tender his resignation on the grounds of "technical inadequacy." International News adequacy. Shortly after President von Hindenburg's return to take personal charge of the tangled situation, it became increas-

SENATORS SEE 25 IN FACTORY

Head of Pool Firm Evasive as To 1,100 Due Here Aug. 15; Drop Alarm Bell Device

By ED PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

BALTIMORE, July 15.—Two dozen voting machines in various stages of completion were all a Senate investigating committee could find at the plant of the Poole Engineering and Machine Company today, toward fulfillment of a contract for 1,000 machines for Allegheny County by August 15.

S. Proctor Brady, president of the company, would not make a definite reply as to whether the machines would be delivered by August 15, as specified. Previously, representatives of the company had assured Allegheny County commissioners the machines would be ready by the time set. Five machines for demonstration have been delivered thus far.

BELLS REMOVED

The inquiry also developed that bells, provided on demonstrating machines as a protection against possible fraud, would not be part of the machines built for Allegheny County. Company officials appeared in the dark as to who gave the order eliminating the bells.

State Senator Frank J. Harris asked Brady:

"Will you have all those 1,100 machines delivered by August 15?"

Brady replied:

"Very nearly."

Later Harris repeated his inquiry to which Brady responded:

"They will all be up there for the primaries."

MAKES NO PROMISES

Brady said he didn't care to make a positive statement as he had been criticised by the newspapers for previous statements.

Accompanying Senator Harris, were Senator Chauncey Parkinson, Greene County; Senator Warren Roberts, Northampton County, members of the committee named by the last legislature to investigate the vote machine situation; former Congressman John M. Morin and John McConnell, of Pittsburgh, the latter said to represent County Commissioner C. C. McGovern.

Chet Cook, sales manager of the Poole company, who escorted the committee through the plant, said they had built 25 machines thus far, that 12 were being completed today, and that they would build up to 75 daily, if necessary, to complete the contract with Allegheny County.

SPEED UP OUTPUT

B. A. Humes, engineer in charge of the assembling works, said they were on a 10-a-day schedule at present, and would assemble 50 machines a day beginning next week.

Senator Harris asked Cook:

"If 300 persons are registered and only 250 appear, what is there to prevent a crooked election board from ringing up the other 50 after the polls are closed?"

Cook explained that bells were on the machines which could be heard on the street, but that Allegheny County machines didn't have the bell. A buzzer was substituted, but this also was barred, Scott asserted.

Harris asked Cook to find out who gave orders eliminating the bells and buzers. Cook said he would inquire of the engineering department.

Notables in Bathing Suits At Grace Moore Nuptials

CANNES, France, July 15.—(AP.)—Grace Moore, American singer, was married today to the young Spanish motion picture actor, Valentine Parara.

After the ceremony a garden party was given at the Hotel Miramar, attended by most of the Riviera filmdom and authors. Half the guests were in formal afternoon attire, the other half just come from the beach in one-piece bathing suits or pajamas.

The guests included Charlie Chaplin, Gloria Swanson and Mrs. Gloria Vanderbilt. Others were Michael Arlen and his wife; Count and Countess Castel Barco; Signora Arturo Toscanini, wife of the conductor; Maurice Dekobra, novelist; Mrs. Dorothy Benjamin Caruso; W. K. Vanderbilt; Adam Didur; Mrs. Lloyd Osborne; Mr. and Mrs. De Koos, of a wealthy Dutch family; Michael Farmer and Taliaferro Casanova.

OPINION BASED ON MANSFIELD AMENDMENT

'Sleeper' Empowers County To Go Ahead Despite Pinchot's Veto, Claim

Welfare leaders today expressed the opinion that the County Commissioners have full authority to build the proposed new Juvenile Detention Home despite the fact that legislation designed to authorize a county bond issue for the project was vetoed by Gov. Pinchot.

At the same time Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence vice chairman of the board of managers of the home, issued a statement in which she defended Pinchot from blame placed upon him for supposedly delaying construction of the building.

The welfare leaders took the stand that the commissioners are empowered to build the home through a change slipped into the County Code during the last days of the Legislature.

CHANGE MADE QUIETLY

The change was made quietly by leaders of the welfare movement to prevent removal of control of the home from the board of managers and the placing of its administration positions in the hands of county politicians, which, they said, would have occurred had not the Governor vetoed the bond statute sponsored by Representative Steedle.

This amendment, attached to section 441 of the code, reads:

"The county commissioners . . . may also appropriate monies for the support of any home or place of detention for dependent, delinquent and neglected children located within the county."

Another means of financing the building was suggested by County Solicitor Mortimer B. Lesher, who expressed doubt as to whether the project would come under governance of the county code. He said:

"If the juvenile detention home comes within the category of jails and correctional institutions, then the amendment to the county code does not apply to it.

AUTHORITY UNDER ACT

"Aside from that, I maintain that the act of 1903 gives the commissioners authority to provide either rooms or a building for juveniles out of the general funds.

"I advised them last year that it could be built from the general fund, but they did not want to go into that fund for $300,000.

"The defeated legislation was for the purpose of giving the commissioners authority to sell bonds to build the new home."

The welfare leaders, however, are confident that the home does not come under the head of jails and correctional institutions and that the amended county code gives the Commissioners authority to build without dipping into the general fund.

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, for one, takes this view. He holds that the amendment in the code makes it mandatory for the Commissioners to give the home's board of managers the $300,00 needed for the proposed building.

The amendment, or "sleeper" as it is known to politicians from the manner in which it was slipped into the code, was inserted by State Senator W. D. Mansfield, now a candidate for County Commissioner.

Among those criticising Gov. Pinchot for the muddle into which the project has fallen was Judge James R. Macfarlane, of Common Pleas Court. He issued a statement yesterday, saying:

"I do not know what influences were brought to bear, but the Governor is responsible for the present unhappy condition of the matter."

It was to such criticism that Mrs. Flinn took exception. She said the Governor had good reasons to veto the Steedle bill because the measure proposed to place the home once more within the sphere of local politics.

BOARD ASSAILS MOONEY CASE

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP.)—The Wickersham Commission today denounced as "shocking to one's sense of justice" the laws under which the Mooney-Billings case was conducted.

Embedded deep in a formal report to President Hoover on methods of criminal procedure, the commission cited the case arising from the 1916 Preparedness Day bombing in San Francisco as one in which motions for a new trial "were held inadequate to prevent injustice."

It made no direct recommendation, however, that the case be reopened.

In the body of its report, signed by 10 of the 11 members, the commission concluded blame should be laid at the door of "incompetent, weak or politics-ridden judges" for much of the general complaint against this country's criminal procedure.

It presented a plea that the public insist upon the complete divorce of the administration of justice from politics and that selection of judges and magistrates be upon the ground of conspicuous fitness alone.

Lackovitch is to be given a hearing before Alderman Anderson on Friday.

Members of the Citizens' Committee whose activities in a reform wave in McKees Rocks are believed to have instigated the bombing of Conley's home, today welcomed the addition of wives and mothers to its ranks.

WOMEN ORGANIZE

At a meeting in the committee's headquarters, 200 Park way, last night, a group of women organized themselves into the Women Voters' League of McKees Rocks and elected Mrs. Rosalina D'Orazio, 300 Bell avenue, chairman.

Alfred Williams, chairman of the committee, explained progress in investigating the allegedly bankrupt borough's finances and in unearthing supposed political irregularities in the conduct of borough affairs.

He told the women he would ask Maj. Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of the state police, to provide police to investigate the bombing.

State police intervention was refused the committee yesterday pending the consent of Maj. Adams. Williams indicated he would make his appeal to Adams as soon as he heard from former assistant U. S. District Attorney Ralph Smith, now in Cleveland, and received advice about procedure.

SHOWERS CURB HEAT WAVE, TWO DIE

Mercury Drops 7 Degrees, Rebounds; St. Swithin Legend Hints 40-Day Rain

Thundershowers today, St. Swithin's Day, tempered the heat wave which claimed two lives in the Pittsburgh district.

Hard rains fell downtown and in outlying districts shortly before noon. The temperature fell from 80 to 73 and then started upward again. Forecaster W. S. Brotzman predicted today's high temperature likely would not exceed 86, compared with yesterday's maximum of 94.

Today's shower on St. Swithin's Day, according to legend, presages rain for 40 consecutive days.

Mrs. Marie Polladino, 47, died in her home, 6322 Everett street, last night from a heart attack superinduced by the heat.

International News Service.

Excessive heat and humidity prevailed today throughout most sections of Central and Eastern United States, while at Philadelphia a terrific rainstorm, driven by a 60-mile-an-hour wind, caused one death and did an estimated damage of $1,000,000.

Two deaths occurred at Wheeling, W. Va., when thermometers recorded 102.

In the vicinity of Port Arthur, Tex., a tropical disturbance was reported sweeping in toward land, propelled by high winds. Heavy rains and a tumbling barometer preceded the storm. Ships all along the coast were observing a storm warning.

Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois and Indiana were baking in temperatures which hovered about the 100-degree mark. Sultry southerly winds tossed the mercury up to 112 at Yuma, Ariz. Little relief was in sight.

Few heat prostrations were reported in the Middle West.

New York likewise suffered from heat and humidity following heavy lightning storms which wrecked a church at Stanton, N. J., and struck other buildings in New Jersey.

GINGER ROGERS GETS DIVORCE

DALLAS, Tex., July 15.—(AP.)—Ginger Rogers, R-K-O-Pathe star, and E. J. (Jack) Culpepper, Dallas vaudeville actor, have been divorced.

It was revealed yesterday the red-headed Fort Worth girl, who leaped to Hollywood and fame shortly after she won a Texas Charleston dancing championship, had been granted a decree by Judge Towne Young in District Court here Saturday.

Miss Rogers told a story of alleged abuse and misrepresentation on the part of her husband.

She said she married when she was 17, and without the consent of her mother. She said:

"I married the defendant, relying on his representations that he was a sober, hard working man, with theatrical connections, and that he did not drink and could make a great actress out of me."

She said they married in New Orleans, March 25, 1929.

MOORE ATTENDS RATE HEARING

Donald O. Moore, manager of the traffic division of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, was in Washington today to attend the opening of a hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the application of the railroads for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates.

Moore was to present a resolution adopted by the directors of the chamber July 2, asking that the commission grant the increase, thereby giving a stimulus to the railroad business that will be reflected generally through trade. Included among those representing various other Pittsburgh interests at the hearing were to be Arthur Bowden, of the Western Pennsylvania Coal Traffic Bureau, and C. P. Schrecongost, of the Hillman Coal Company.

COAL EXCLUDED IN RATE PLEA OF RAILROADS

Carriers Begin Argument Before I.C.C. for Increase; Coke Also Made Exception

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP.)—The railroads of the country marshalled witnesses before the Interstate Commerce Commission today to support their petition for a 15 per cent increase in all rates except coal and coke.

An amendment to their general petition was filed at the beginning of the hearings under which coal and coke would be subject to specific rates instead of receiving the percentage increase.

The original petition would have excluded "certain other commodities" in addition, but upon being asked to name those commodities, the railroads informed the commission they intended making no other exceptions.

INSURANCE PLEA MADE

Edward D. Duffield, president of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, told the commission that the interests of 50,000,000 life insurance policyholders and nearly 13,000,000 savings bank depositors were threatened by the decrease in railroad revenues. Duffield is chairman of the emergency committee on railroad investments of life insurance companies and mutual savings banks which filed a brief recently in support of the railroad's plea.

Duffield said that, as a result of a conference of heads of banks and life insurance companies, the executives concluded the margin of safety with respect to railroad bonds had reached a point where their duty required them to make representations to the commission that a true emergency exists.

Appearing as a witness for the railroads, Dr. Julius H. Parmelee told the commission that American railways, despite the most rigorous economy, have been unable to make a fair living during the last 10 years.

Parmelee, a director of the Bureau of Railway Economics, took the stand immediately after the carriers had amended their petition.

Commissioners Meyer, Lewis and Lee, with seven representatives of state commissions, sat in the hearing. Commissioner Meyer presided.

Parmelee said the future ability of the roads to serve the public adequately "is seriously threatened unless additional income is forthcoming" and presented statistics to show their serious situation.

REVENUES CONTRACT

He said the railroads spent nearly $7,000,000,000 to increase their efficiency of operation between 1923 and 1930. Reductions in operating expenses due to the betterments, could not, he said, keep up with reductions in revenues caused by a sharp drop in traffic.

Parmelee said the railways had made an almost unbroken series of reductions in their unit expenses of freight operation since 1930. From 1920 to 1930 expenses per 1,000 revenue ton miles were reduced from $10.66 to $7.43 and transportation expenses from $5.35 to 1,000 revenue ton miles in 1920 to $3.52 in 1930.

Railroad taxes are entirely too high, he said. He noted an increase in every year from 1921 to 1930 in all taxes other than federal income taxes. The ratio of taxes, he said, rose from 5 cents per dollar of revenue in 1921 to 6.6 cents per dollar of revenue in 1930.

DAVIS OPPOSES INDUSTRY AID

HERSHEY, Pa., July 15.—(AP.)—Governmental aid to industry was assailed by Senator Davis today as economically unsound.

Appealing to railroads and other industries to work out "their own business salvation," the Pennsylvania Republican told the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen at a picnic here today that those who ask relief "through legislative channels" realize themselves such assistance "would be but temporary and unsound in economic precedent." He continued:

"Despite intensified competition which is being offered by buses, motor trucks and airplanes, oblivion for the railroads of our nation is so far distant that our great grandchildren may not observe such an economic calamity."

Saying the existence of the nation "is vitally dependent" on the railroads, he predicted rail carriers will "enjoy a fair share" of the profits of prosperity when the business cycle turns upward in the nation.

Two Dash in Hearse To Airplane Ride

CHEYBOGAN, Mich.—(INS.)—A brief sensation was created here when a hearse, with a fire engine clearing the way, sped to the local airport. There two men alighted, to dash to an airplane and speed aloft into the clouds.

The Cheboygan natives were puzzled until it was explained that Maj. Floyd Evans, director of the Michigan State Board of Aeronautics, had bargain with Ceryle Kimberly, local undertaker, for a ride in a hearse, the price to be a ride in the major's airplane.

Cuban Senator Slain, Foe Hunted in Duel Foul Play

HAVANA, July 15.—(AP.)—Shot four times in what police believed was a duel, Senator Rogerio Zayas Bazan, of Camaguey, died today, and Senator Modesto Maidique, of the same province, was sought.

Zayas Bazan, 49, was former interior secretary. Senator Maidique fled in his own car after the shooting.

As police reconstructed the shooting from stories told by witnesses, the principals drove to a spot in the Miramar section and arrived about the same time. Senator Zayas Bazan alighted, and before he could draw his gun his assailant fired four times.

A party of American tourists from the liner Virginia were said to have witnessed the gunfire.

'WILD MAN' TERRORIZING WEST LIBERTY GIRLS SOUGHT

SCANTILY CLAD NOMAD HIDES IN WOODS

Mystery Screams Alarm Neighborhood; Motorist to Rescue of Young Woman

The Wild Man of Capital Avenue, whose idea of full dress is a short shirt and a small cap, was being sought by police and county detectives today after half a dozen girls had reported being molested.

The man, according to residents of Capital avenue, which runs from the 1900 block West Liberty avenue over the hill toward Brookline, makes his home in a heavily wooded spot about half way up the hill.

Girls and young women, traveling Capital avenue at night or early in the morning, have frequently been stopped by the man. Always he wears the same regalia of cap and shirt.

Early this morning as Lillian Donley, 22, of 229 Plainview avenue, was on her way to work, the man leaped from behind a tree and grabbed her by the arm. Miss Donley fought him off until a motorist came to her rescue. The man fled.

East End Girl's Assailant Sought

East End police today were searching for a man who, posing as a health officer, lured an 11-year-old girl from an East End theater to an alley near Penn avenue and St. Clair street, late yesterday.

The girl, who lives in Stratford avenue, informed her parents of the incident and was taken to West Penn Hospital. Physicians said that the child's condition was fair.

highway. He and his wife were there, counting the day's receipts, when the bomb wrecked their home, more than a mile away.

His two children and a maid were away, visiting relatives in Youngwood, and the house was unoccupied when demolished.

Several neighbors told police that just before the explosion occurred two men drove up to the Crystol home in an automobile and carried a large basket into the house. They came out immediately without the basket and barely had turned the corner when the blast occurred, the witnesses said.

WOMAN SEES FLAMES

Mrs. Sarah Daume, of 628 Pittsburgh street, told police she was preparing to retire when she heard the explosion. When she reached the front porch of her home, she said, a sheet of flame was shooting from the ruins. The fire was quickly subdued by borough firemen.

Two large pieces of timber were blown across a 50-foot lot and through the wall of the home of Dick Mackey, 612 Pittsburgh street. Another piece rashed through a window in the bedroom of Mackey's two small daughters and stuck in the wall. Lathing and plaster showered the bed. Neither child was at home.

WALL BLOWN AWAY

Part of the wall of the demolished house was blown against the home of Mrs. Daume. Her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Morrison, were showered with plaster in their bedroom. A picture hurled from the wall fell a few feet from Mrs. Morrison's head.

Glass from windows and plaster also showered the bedroom of Lawrence Austin, his wife and 18-month-old daughter, who were staying at the home of Austin's father, Howard Austin, nearby.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cook, 51, of 606 Pittsburgh street, was blown from her bed by the blast. Practically every window in her home was broken, as were the windows in the East McKeesport Public School, 200 yards away.

The Crystol home faced a short side street. A portion of the front of the building was blown 100 yards down this thoroughfare.

F. H. Randle, of 615 Pittsburgh street, had a narrow escape when a picture was blown from the wall of his home and fell across his bed.

Street lights in the vicinity of the explosion were put out of service.

Crystol told police he heard the blast while counting up the receipts of the night at the dance hall, but paid no attention to it, believing it to be blasting. He said he could assign no reason for the bombing.

Guard Officer After Bloody Bomb Threat

CHICAGO, July 15. — (INS.) — Guards have watched the home of Police Captain Hugh McCarthy for a month, it was disclosed today, following receipt of bombing threats written in human blood.

The letter contained the threat:

"Beware or your home will be bombed."

Capt. McCarthy, who lives with his wife and four children, has been on sick leave for eight weeks.

FILM DIRECTOR SUES AIMEE FOR $240,000

'Ma' Kennedy's New Mate Wants Evangelist to Wed; Has Husband Picked Out

LOS ANGELES, July 15.—(AP.) — Aimee Semple McPherson, the evangelist, was described today as "an actress of extraordinary qualifications," but one who caused large financial loss by abrogating a motion picture contract, in a suit for $240,000 on file here today.

J. Roy Stewart, a director, sued the evangelist, declaring she signed a contract October 23, 1929, to star in "Clay in the Potter's Hand." The complaint said Stewart received a letter from her December 14, 1930, abrogating the agreement.

He announced he spent $25,000 in preliminary promotion, and asked $10,000 for his own time during preparation, and an additional $5,000 for "idle time." He seeks $200,000 as profit which, he asserted, he would have realized.

HONEYMOONERS FLEE

HERMOSA BEACH, Cal., July 15.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. G. Edward Hudson, the latter the mother of Aimee Semple McPherson, fled their honeymoon cottage here today following an invasion of reporters, photographers, friends and idly curious.

They sought the cottage after their return from their recent marriage at Longview, Wash.

Mrs. Hudson declined to reveal their destination, but as her husband placed the last bags in their automobile, she gave out a few items of news.

HINTS OF STORK

In December, she said, she expected to become a great-grandmother, the happy event being anticipated in the home of Mrs. Roberta Semple Smythe, Mrs. McPherson's pretty daughter, whose romantic wedding at Singapore to William Bradley Smythe, ship's purser, occurred early last spring.

Some time in the future Mr and Mrs. Hudson expected to adopt "a nice little baby boy."

And Hudson has entered enthusiastically into his wife's plans to find a husband for Mrs. McPherson. Hudson said he even had the husband picked out—a personal friend, he amplified, whose introduction to the famous evangelist he intends to negotiate as soon as possible.

RESULT OF COAL PARLEY WAITED

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(INS.)—The request of the United Mine Workerss of America to President Hoover to call a national conference of bituminous coal operators and miners to work out plans for stabilizing the industry today was still undecided.

After more than six hours of conferences between officials of the miners' organization and Secretary of Labor Doak and Secretary of Commerce Lamont, extending over two days, Doak said "other interested parties" would have to be consulted before the two cabinet members could make recommendations to the President.

Doak declined to indicate who the "other interested parties" were, but it is believed they constitute another group of operators. Those who confessed here last week with Doak and Lamont turned "thumbs down" on the proposal for a national conference on the ground it would have no effect in bettering conditions in the industry.

Ban on Fireworks Backed in Sewickley

An ordinance banning sale and use of fireworks in Sewickley was passed unanimously on first and second readings by the borough council last night.

Before final action council plans to obtain the sentiment of Sewickley residents as well as of surrounding boroughs. One boy suffered a minor injury from an exploding firecracker July 4, Sewickley officials said.

DETROIT, Mich. — (INS.) — George Dracopoulos, 39, was fined $30 by Judge Edward J. Jeffries, for allegedly shooting a dog which was a guide to James Whitney, a blind man. Dracaupoulis' defense that the dog had rooted up his garden failed to save him from the punishment.

AL'S HENCHMAN GIVEN 'RIDE'

CHICAGO, July 15.—(AP.)—Edgar A. Smith, bodyguard of Danny Stanton, and one of Al Capone's henchmen, was found shot to death in an automobile on the South Side today.

Smith and Stanton had been ordered extradited to Wisconsin to be tried for the murder last August of Jack Zuta, vice lord. Their case is now before the Supreme Court.

There was a tentative theory that a woman was linked with the killing. Beside his body lay an envelope addressed to "Edgar" from "Virginia," and on the reverse was a penciled note:

"Mabel: Give this to Edgar and tell him that Virginia sent it and everything will be all right."

Capital Rum Thieves Loot Envoy's Home

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(INS.)—Thieves entered the home of Alexander von Wuthenau, secretary at the Germany embassy, yesterday and stole several bottles of liquor. The Wuthenaus were not in the house when the intruder forced the celler door, Several cases of liquor were opened, police said. Members of the diplomatic corps are immune from the prohibition laws.

'Get Your Man' Movie Creation, Not 'Mounties'

OTTAWA, July 15.—(AP.)—The tradition that the "mounties always get their man" was an invention of American moving picture producers, according to Col. Courtland Starnes, retiring head of the Royal Canadian Mounted police. He said:

"We got them if we could."

He added that the personnel of the Mounties now was equal to that of its earlier days when it earned international fame for its exploits.

BIG DRY ARMY BEGINS DUTY

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP.)—Federal prohibition enforcement today embarked on a new era, to be marked by the biggest force of dry agents yet thrown against commercial liquor law violators.

The expectation at the Prohibition Bureau here was that by nightfall a brigade of 335 new agents, bringing the force to about 1,900, its high peak in history, would be ready for active duty.

Officials had word that most of them completed a two-weeks' course of intensive training yesterday, with the remainder to finish today.

Under present plans the greatest pressure in the new campaign will be exerted in the New York, Philadelphia and Chicago districts. Nearly half of the new force will be stationed in or around these cities.

Five additional prohibition agents will report to the Pittsburgh headquarters Monday officials announced here today.

R. G. Hand, Treasury Official, Ends Life

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP.)—Robert G. Hand, commissioner of accounts and deposits of the Treasury Department, was found dead in his closed garage early today with the motor of his automobile running.

A certificate of suicide was issued. He had been treated for a nervous disorder and members of his family said he had threatened to take his life by monoxide gas from his car.

MINERS' CHIEF URGES SPREAD OF STRIKE

Borich Spurs Delegates at Conference Here to Keep United Front in All Fields

After a day of strife in the local mine strike zone, a National conference, under the auspices of the National Miners' Union, opened today in Javor Hall, 822 North Canal street. Between 500 and 600 delegates listened to an address by Frank Borich, secretary of the union and chairman of the conference, who urged a united front by the strikers.

Delegates from Kentucky, West Virginia, Illinois, Ohio and both the hard and soft coal fields of Pennsylvania were present. Included were many women and Negro delegates. John Alford, of Kentucky, was elected vice chairman.

URGES STRIKE SPREAD

Borich advocated spreading the strike to all coal fields. A statement issued attacked the United Mine Workers of America, denounced Secretaries Lamont and Doak, and said the National Miners' Union was not opposed to a national conference with operators, but would not participate in such a conference along with the United Mine Workers.

Citing conditions in Central Europe as the forerunner of the downfall of capitalism, William Z. Foster, national secretary of the Trades Unity League, and leader in the 1919 steel strike, urged his hearers to war against and to oppose capitalism and slavery.

Commenting on the contracts of the United Mine Workers made in West Virginia, he said:

"We oppose this system of starvation and slavery. We call upon the workers to build their faith and trust in the National Miners Union."

Dynamite was exploded under a coal shed in the rear of the home of Bert Hartley, in Smallwood, near Daisytown, last night. The damage was slight.

BUS FIRED ON

Strikebreakers en route to Wheeling, according to a report to state police, were fired upon by occupants of an automobile near the state line west of West Alexander, but nobody was injured.

J. T. Tucker, Elm Grove, W. Va., Negro, was arrested in connection with the shooting, by state police.

The home of Harry Tilton, Atlasburg, was partially wrecked by a bomb and the home of John Chincilla, Midland, was fired. Another bomb, unexploded, was found under the home of Mike Pehulic, at Hill Top, Washington County.

The Miners' Relief Fund of the Socialist party reported that they are receiving urgent calls for food daily.

Aged Man Missing, Police Aid Asked

The Missing Persons Bureau was today asked to search for Jabez Corns, 78, of 408 Todd street, Wilkinsburg, who disappeared Monday from his home. His daughter, Mrs. Frederick Rotthoff, of 706 Wallace avenue, Wilkinsburg, told the police he was last seen near the Washington Crossing Brigde. He was described as wearing a gray mustache, Palm Beach suit, straw hat and glasses.

Her bobbed auburn hair will be decked with a flowery veil embroidered with gold thread and her train will be resplendent with silver facing. They are the work of two girls from the Rumanian Y. W. C. A., founded by the Princess.

The honeymoon will be spent in a castle in the hills of Southern Germany near Munich—one of the most beautiful in the land. It is the wedding gift of King Carol and Prince von Hohenzollern.

King Carol is taking a personal interest in the romance and supervising the arrangements for his sister's wedding.

POPE'S CHARGES 'LIES,' FASCISTS DECLARE

Mussolini and Party Leaders Denounce Vatican, Masonry In 'Plot to Defame' Balilla

ROME, July 15.—(AP.)—Premier Mussolini and the Fascist directorate today denounced the Pope's recent encyclical on Young Fascism as a collection of "lies."

The Vatican and Masonry have combined in "common hostility toward the Fascist state," they charged, and to "defame" Balilla, a Fascist organization of boys.

MILITARY DISPLAY

In a statement, the directorate announced that the membership of the Fascist party, 873,000 adults and 642,000 youths, would mobilize shortly on the Piave battlefields of Northern Italy to demonstrate that Fascism is a military unit "that has achieved a revolution and has the imperative duty of defending it against whomsoever." The statement said:

"The directorate of the party protests against the lies, and denounces the affirmations in the foreign note of Vatican origin against Balilla, the strong pride and future of the Fascist regime. It declares that no one should be allowed to defame the great organization."

ALLIANCE CHARGED

The Pope's criticism of the Fascist oath came in for strong objection. The statement added:

"Black shirts have demonstrated that they know how to renounce bread, career and even life when it is necessary for the country and for Fascist revolution. The Fascist party spurns, therefore, the grave attempts by which it is sought to depreciate its faith, already proved by sacrifices.

"The directorate is vigilant to prevent any of the old remnants of the Masonic and Liberal days from assuming any activities, even on the edges of the regime. But, this having been stated, the directorate calls attention to the unheard-of alliance between the Vatican and Masonry, which are bound together in a common hostility towards the Fascist state."

OFFICIAL DENIES BLACKMAIL

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 15 (AP.)—Ray L. Thomas, county prosecutor, having denied that he had represented himself as an attorney for Harry Engle, former street railway commissioner, and then sought to prosecute him, resumed the stand today in his blackmail trial.

Thomas said that he had promised grand jury investigation of Engle's allegations that local public utility officials had been attempting to bribe public officials. He said he had made the promise in "order to get the goods on Engle."

Thomas had charged in a letter to City Council that the former street railway commissioner had attempted to blackmail officials of the former Pennsylvania-Ohio Power and Light Company in order to collect secret remuneration from the utility officials. It is upon this letter that charges of blackmail have been made against the prosecutor.

The state contends that Thomas posed to Engle as his attorney and then used information he thus gained in confidence to attempt prosecution.

6 DEAD, LIQUOR PARTY TOLL

TAMAQUA, Pa., July 15.—(AP.)—Six men were dead and a seventh critically ill in the Coaldale Hospital from drinking state police said, an alcoholic preparation containing poison.

With the discovery of James Sweeney, 59, Mahanoy City, who died last night in the Coaldale Hospital, and Patrick Slavin, 58, McAdoo, for whose recovery physicians had little hope, the state troopers said they had accounted for seven of eight persons they learned had bought the preparation Sunday night.

Police continued a search for possible additional victims. They said they had learned 35 persons were at the party in the mountains near here, where the poison was drunk.

TRY WOMAN AS POLICE SLAYER

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 15.—(AP.)—The state called witnesses to the stand today in an attempt to prove that Mrs. Edna James, charged with first-degree murder, had slain Policeman Raymond Castner in a sweethearts' quarrel.

Mrs. James, the third woman to go on trial in Jefferson County for first-degree murder, is alleged to have fired the bullet that caused the patrolman's death while he was at her home. Her conviction on the charge, without recommendation for mercy, carries a mandatory sentence of death in the electric chair.

Opening statements were made and testimony was begun yesterday after a jury of ten men and two women was completed. The attorneys waived the selection of a thirteenth juror.

ZIONISTS ELECT SOKOLOW

BASLE, Switzerland, July 15.—(AP.)—Nahum Sokolow, veteran Zionist leader and chairman of the Zionist Executive, has been elected president of the world Zionist organization by a vote of 118 to 48.

The Laborites and the German delegation voted against Sokolow while the Lipsky group of the American delegation and the British delegation abstained from voting.

He was supported by the Revisionists, the orthodox Zionists and the American delegates representing the Brandeis group.

Baby Falls 20 Feet, Unhurt When He Lands on Dog

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP.)—A family pup snoozing in a warm July sun possibly saved a 15-months-old baby's life yesterday.

The baby, Joseph Frey, crawled through a railing to the balcony of his parents' second story home and fell 20 feet to the pavement below. He landed on the recumbent form of the dog.

Neither the boy nor the dog was hurt.

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., July 15.—(AP.)—The hoisting cage at the Panama mine of the Ben Franklin Coal Company dropped to the bottom of the 90-foot shaft yesterday and carried part of the shaft structure with it. The cage was empty. One hundred and twenty-five men in the mine were taken out through an air shaft.

GLOBE CYCLER NEAR HOME

WHEELING, W. Va., July 15.—(AP.)—Nearing the end of a 50,000-mile tour around the world on a bicycle, Harold W. Salsbury, 26, reached Wheeling last night en route to his East Liverpool, O., home, which he left two years ago. He expects to complete the trip today.

Salsbury left the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Salsbury, in March, 1929, and pedaled to New York. He took a steamer to England and visited almost every country in Europe by bicycle. He reached Seattle, Wash., seven months ago and since then has been leisurely cycling his way homeward.

The trip, Salsbury, was a result of doctor's orders to live in the open air.

No wonder Women are switching to Camels

The steady increase in the number of women who are switching to Camels is a tribute to the mildness of this cigarette.

A woman's throat is more delicate than a man's — more easily irritated by the unkindly hot smoke of parched, dry-as-dust tobaccos.

Camels are milder, first, because they are a throat-friendly blend of fine Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos that require no parching.

Camels are milder, second, because all peppery dust is removed by a special vacuum-cleaning process before Camels are air-sealed in the Humidor Pack of germ-safe moisture-proof Cellophane.

Camels are milder, third, because this wrapping of moisture-proof Cellophane prevents the cigarettes from drying out. The natural moisture of the tobaccos is held intact.

When you inhale the cool fragrant smoke of a Camel you enjoy all the flavor, all the aroma of blended fine tobaccos kept in prime smoking condition—without the sting and bite-and-burn of stale, dried-out cigarettes.

Just try Camels, join the throng and switch to them for one day, then quit them — if you can.

● Don't remove the moisture-proof Cellophane from your package of Camels after you open it. The Humidor Pack is protection against perfume and powder odors, dust and germs. It delivers fresh Camels and keeps them right until the last one has been smoked

PASTOR SPEAKS 58 HOURS

COTTON VALLEY, La., July 15.—(AP.)—The Rev. E. A. Sandifer, 40-year-old pastor of the Cotton Valley Baptist Church, today had a record of preaching continuously for 58½ hours.

Mr. Sandifer started his discourse at 11 a. m. Sunday. He paused now and then to partake of raw eggs, chocolate and coffee and once to change his shirt. He was quite hoarse when he concluded at 9:30 p. m. yesterday.

His wife said:

URGE DRAINING OF DEATH POOL

LIMA, O., July 15.—(AP.)—County officials were considering a proposal to pump out the remaining water in a stone quarry near here in which the bodies of Miss Thelma Woods, 17, and her escort, Earl Truesdale, 20, were discovered several weeks ago.

Officials said they had no information in the case indicating further clues might be uncovered there, but possibly would resume the pumping in the hope of disclosing something. Eight feet of water remain in the pool.

PARK MOVIE JOB LIST SLASHED

There will be but eight men in charge of operation of the talking moving pictures at city parks this summer instead of 19 as Public Works Director Edward G. Lang hoped for, Council having voted for the smaller force.

A supervisor who was to have been paid $100 per week for two hours' work, was eliminated.

Four stage hands and two sound technicians were dispensed with.

Twelve projectionists who were to receive $20 for two hours' work had their number slashed. Councilman Robert Alderdice moved that eight were enough. Council sustained him.

Movies are scheduled to be inaugurated at the four parks next Sunday. Sound equipment is now being installed.

MUSMANNO FOE OF CHILD JAILING

Speaking at a meeting in the Kerr School, O'Hara Township, last night, M. A. Musmanno, candidate for judge of the County Court, denounced the practice of detaining children in city and borough jails, and declared that if elected he would work toward the ending of such practices. He said in part:

"There is a tendency among many local officers to lodge children in jail to await hearings in Juvenile Court. This practice is inhuman. The Juvenile Court is a component part of the County Court, and if elected to the bench of the latter court I will see to it that this practice ceases at once."

WYLIE AVENUE GIRL SOUGHT

Leaving her home to go to Schenley High School, where she was enrolled as a summer student, Pauline Sarhosis, 14, of 604 Wylie avenue, failed to report for her classes and efforts of her friends and police to locate her have thus far failed. The girl disappeared Monday.

Miss Pauline

Her father, James Sarhosis, hotel proprietor, appealed to police and the Missing Persons Bureau yesterday. Sarhosis believes that his daughter has met with foul play.

Pauline, in an effort to advance herself while her classmates enjoyed their vacation, enrolled in summer school. She had not missed any classes and was anxious to go to school, her relatives said.

Her parents say that the girl was home-loving and did not have many friends. She always returned home at noon from school.

Canadian Premier Sees Cheaper Autos

OTTAWA, Ont., July 15.—(AP.)—Popular makes of automobiles probably will be cheaper in Canada as a consequence of changes in tariffs, Premier Bennett told the House of Commons last night. After explaining the changes in duties, in which he made particular mention of cars in the $1,200 class, the Premier said:

"I do expect there will be a reduction in that class of car."

Masons of W. Va. Install Treasurer

WHEELING, W. Va., July 15.—(AP.)—Fred C. Steinbicker, of Wheeling, was installed as treasurer of the State Grand Lodge at a special assemblage of Masons here last night. Steinbicker succeeds Adrian C. Hadebousch, of Martinsburg, who died recently.

C. E.'S CLASH OVER RUSSIA

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—(AP.)—A meeting of the Christian Endeavor convention here was interrupted as Col. Raymond Robins, former American Red Cross commissioner to Russia, and chairman of the 1916 Progressive party convention, made an address in which he favored recognition of the Soviet by the United States.

An unexpected protest was made from the audience by Julius Siemens, San Francisco Mennonite. He said:

"I am a Mennonite and they have virtually driven my church from Russia. Conditions in Russia are worse than they were during the czarist government. We might just as well recognize an island of cannibals as recognize Russia."

Adoption of a resolution asking the government to take the lead in disarmament in the February conference, marked the day's business session.

U. S. MAY TAKE LEVIATHAN

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP.)—The Leviathan, world's largest ship, may be repossessed temporarily by the government, which acquired it from Germany when the United States entered the World War.

Paul W. Chapman, president of the United States Lines, was reported to be ready to ask that the government take such action to help his company out of temporary financial difficulties. Operation of the Leviathan, George Washington, America and Republic are understood to have caused the United States Lines' troubles, due to falling off in the number of trans-Atlantic passengers.

MARKET STREET CLUB RAIDED

Three half-barrels of beer and large quantities of gin, whisky and wine were reported confiscated by prohibition agents yesterday in a raid on a second floor club at 401-03 Market street.

ENGINE CHANGE TO SPEED U. S. PLANES URGED

Williams Favors Stream Line Type as Europeans Aim At 400 Miles an Hour

(In the first interview yesterday, Lieut. Williams declared the development of speed planes necessary to the progress of American aviation. Today he discusses motors.)

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service.

ROME, July 15. — Unless American aviation is to stand still, after so many fruitful years of development, it will be necessary for the United States to adopt a new type of airplane engine.

In his exclusive interview with Universal Service on the results of a summer's inspection of European aviation, Lieut. Al Williams, former star United States Navy pilot, so declared. He said:

"We have in the United States more planes than Europe and more superior air lines, but when it comes to speed we're still dabbling with 200 miles an hour, while engineers are building planes in England, France and Italy that are designed for 400 miles an hour.

"What's the answer?

"It is stream-lined engines. By that I mean liquid-cooled engines. The present thought in Europe has swung to the stream-line engine as against the air-cooled engines which are used almost exclusively in America today."

MEETS EUROPEAN LEADERS

Williams, now European director of the national air races, to be held in Cleveland August 29 to September 7, has had exceptional opportunities to study European aviation at first hand. He has had personal talks with most of the present-day European air chiefs.

The most important fact impressed on Williams' mind as a result of his study was Europe's intense, enthusiastic and successful effort to develop airplanes of high speed.

SEES AMERICA LAGGING

Williams thinks America is lagging far behind. He said:

"My trip to Europe this summer has convinced me that those of us in America who have been advocating speed and more speed in aviation are entirely right. We find complete justification in the intense activities of England, Italy and France in this direction.

"Back of the development in England, Italy and France is the unified aviation system, complete, self-contained and unhampered in accomplishing its ambitions."

America's air services are part of the Army and Navy instead of combined in a single air department of the government.

Printed Wash Fabrics

15c yard

Quality fabrics, suitable for all smart summer purposes, at a price which is but a fraction of their regular selling prices.

Hot-Weather Suits

A Market Opportunity

$13.50

Two-piece crashes—cool, airy fabrics that have the further advantage of not crushing easily and keeping their shape remarkably well!

The accepted two-button, notch-lapel type for vestless weather—in plain browns, grays and blues, or the same colors with neat stripes.

As a point to prove how outstanding is the value, the pockets are tailored-in instead of the usual patch style—a feature that usually adds appreciably to the cost.

Just 200 suits at this price!

Unsung New Yorkers

A GROUP OF show people sat around the other night and discussed the possible fate of Marion Roberts. As I write this, Marion has been missing for some time. The showgirl sweetheart of Jack Diamond, she vanished completely after Jack's most recent shooting. There are those who say she is hiding. There are those who insist she is dead. There are very few who really know the truth.

One of the group voiced an inquiry.

"How do these stage kids happen to get mixed up with men whom they know can bring them nothing but harm?" he asked. "Marion was a swell kid. Why did she permit herself to get into such a mess?"

The conversation turned to other girls who had found themselves in similar situations. Another man spoke.

"Any of you remember Dorothy B——?" he asked. "She worked with me in that revue about three years ago. I heard part of her story, but I never learned the ending. Any of you fellows know what really became of her?

None of us could supply the answer. We knew only that she has been missing for a long, long time.

The Dorothy he had been talking about was a great little kid. She was only 17 years of age and she was playing in her first show. This, you will remember, was three years ago.

Putting aside the inevitable jealousy angle, practically anyone in that show could have told you that Dorothy was the sweetest kid in the outfit. She lived with and supported her mother—but she never permitted her mother to become a pest around the theater.

She never went out with anyone connected with the show. She was courteous to everyone, but never familiar. The producer must have appreciated her value as a showgirl because he had her spotted in preferred positions throughout the performance. In short, Dorothy was attractive, decent—and sensible.

After a long run in New York, the show went to Chicago. It proved just as great a hit out there as it had been in New York. So the members of the troupe settled themselves for a stay of at least four months—and possibly much longer.

On the road Dorothy was the same kid she had been in New York. Her mother remained in New York, and Dorothy lived alone. But that didn't seem to make the slightest difference in her life as far as decency was concerned. The troupe all respected the girl immensely.

Ask me how she first met Harry and I will not be able to supply you with the information. All I know is that, for the first time since the show opened, a young man was waiting at the stage door to escort her home night after night.

The girls in her room began to kid her about being in love.

"Well," they chirped. "It had to happen. You finally went and fell. But tell us something. Who is this mysterious guy anyhow?"

Dorothy was a trifle indignant.

"Harry's not mysterious at all," she asserted. "And when you say I'm in love with him, I think maybe you're right. He doesn't have to work because his father left him a lot of money. But that's not the reason I like him so well. Not at all.

"It's because he's so doggone decent to me. He hands me little gifts and flowers, of course, but never once has he attempted to get fresh. He's just a regular person. And I'm beginning to care for him in a big, big way." . . .

After a month had elapsed, Dorothy was so in love that she cared about nothing else. With his placid and unhurried attentions, Harry had done a good job. The girl believed everything he told her and was only too willing to be guided by his suggestions. You must remember that it was the first time she had ever been deeply in love. And when that happens, Roscoe, how fast you can go!

As time went along, Dorothy began to notice peculiar things going on. Hardlooking characters were looking for Harry at all hours of the day and night. She would answer phone calls for him and take strange messages. As, for instance:

"Tell Harry that guy was attended to." Or "Let Harry know that wop won't bother him no more." And so on.

The girl was extremely worried. And one night she asked Harry about the situation.

"It's true, kid," he admitted frankly. "I thought you knew my racket a long time ago. But don't let it worory you. That's just my business—the same as yours is stepping on a stage and looking pretty.

"I love you plenty, Dorothy. I am not going to stay in this business too long. It's not healthy. And as soon as I clean up enough jack, we'll both get out of it. That is all there is to it, kid."

The girl was terribly frightened. She went to several people in the show and asked their advice. All of them told her it would be wisest to remain friendly with the man until the show closed in Chicago and moved to another town. So the girl, worried beyond all words, did exactly that.

As far as Dorothy was concerned, the weeks dragged along as though they were years. She realized now that she had made a horrible mistake. The love she once gave this man had turned to a great fear. She prayed for the day when the show would close.

Eventually, the time arrived. Dorothy was packing her trunk when Harry came down. He asked her what she was doing.

"I'm getting ready to leave, Harry," she told him. "The show closes here in a couple of days and goes to Cleveland. I'm going to meet mother there and—"

"You're not going to Cleveland, kid," he said. "You're never going to leave me. So you might as well get the idea out of your head."

The girl beegan to tremble. She stammered a few words that meant nothing. The man stepped forward. His voice was not harsh. As a matter of fact, it was kind.

"Dorothy," he murmured. "I love you. But aside from that, there's something else you must understand. You know too much about me and my business. You've been living here for 17 weeks—and you've learned too much for my safety.

"I don't say you'd talk, kid. I don't think you would. But I can take no chances. You're staying here with me. If you leave, I'll kill you."

The show opened in Cleveland the following week. Without Dorothy . . .

Thus, when we were asked what had become of Dorothy, there was none of us who could supply the answer. We knew only that nobody has seen her since—and that she has been missing for a long, long time . . .

COURT REVOKES ALCOHOL BAN

Revocation of the alcohol permit of the Barr Manufacturing Corporation of Tyrone, by Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington, was set aside by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in an opinion received here today. The higher court upheld the findings of Judge R. M. Gibson in the United States District Court.

The Barr Manufacturing Company, one of the largest manufacturers of toilet preparations in Pennsylvania, had two permits permitting withdrawal of 55,000 gallons of denatured alcohol yearly.

Pennington charged that some of the alcohol found its way into illicit hands, was re-distilled, and was used in bootlegging. He revoked the permit in 1929. Judge Gibson ordered the permit restored, and the government appealed.

JOBLESS GIRL WINS TOUR

A Pittsburgh girl, an unemployed stenographer, has been named winner of the 3,000-mile tour of the United States, awarded by the National Home Furnishing Association in its national home styling contest. Miss Alice Dean, of 6723 McPherson boulevard, was notified today that she had received the award, and that she would start August 1 on her tour of the country. The tour will last 30 days, and all expenses will be paid. Miss Dean and a score of other winners will visit dozens of famous American homes.

Miss Dean won on her arrangement of one room of a home by the placing of furniture, drapes and interior decorations in the most pleasing manner. Miss Dean arranged her entry through the facilities of the Joseph Horne Company.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, July 15.—(AP.)—The Catholic cathedral at Plovdiv was virtually destroyed by fire today. The damage was estimated at $2,000,000. The cathedral contains the tomb of Princess Marie Louis, mother of King Boris, which was saved.

Trial of Peruvian Rebel Chief Planned

LIMA, Peru, July 15.—(AP.)—Press dispatches from Cuzco said the capture of Commander Manuel Cabrera, leader of the revolt in Southeastern Peru, had been confirmed and that Cabrera would be taken to Cuzco to be court-martialed.

Hit and Run Driver Kills Deer on Road

MONROVIA.—A hit-and-run driver accounted for the first deer of the off season in this district when an unknown deer slayer ran over a spiked buck on Peck road, near here.

According to Chief of Police Frank, Scott, who answered an anonymous call relating the news, the buck looked as if he had been bagged by a large car.

R. E. Jeffries, state game warden, put the deer in cold storage. He will give it to a charity institution.

Missing Lamp Posts Lead to Graft Probe

BERWIN, Ill., July 15.—(INS.)—Four hundred missing lamp posts today induced Cook County to start a grand jury investigation of graft in this suburb's municipal government during the past 12 years. The lamp posts, it was charged, were paid for but never installed and the city hall cost only $80,000 of the $125,000 that was appropriated.

Much of the evidence was unearthed by Mayor Frank Novotny, who ran on a reform platform when he tired of paying excessive taxes.

COUNCIL OPENS GARBAGE QUIZ

City Council will be asked to make its own investigation of the city garbage and rubbish contracts before awarding the 1931 business, Francis S. Guthrie said today before entering the Council chamber to testify at the hearing on bids which have been submitted.

It was intimated that Council will be asked to remove any secrecy connected with the garbage and rubbish contracts and investigate the financial responsibility and personnel of the Modern Service Company, new firm bidding against the American Reduction Company for the city's garbage and rubbish contract.

Guthrie said that he expects to inquire why plans and specifications for the new disposal plants were not filed by the Modern Service Company. Information which he has on the garbage problem, he said, he will withhold until Council has done some of its own investigating.

COUNCIL GETS DE ROSA CASE

Charges that the city is renting municipally owned land to favored politicians at such low prices as to make competition impossible in other nearby sites reached City Council today.

Nearby are similar stands owned by Mike De Rosa, Twelfth Ward Republican leader, and Harry Sable, brother of Dr. Daniel E. Sable, chief surgeon of the Department of Public Safety.

President of Council John S. Herron said he did not believe the rentals to De Rosa and Sable were below that of other barbecue stands and that he would give Mrs. Stewart a hearing at any time. She said she probably would appear before Council one week from today.

DRY LAW JAILS 3 CHILDREN

ATLANTA, July 15.—(AP.)—Three children, the youngest 11 and the oldest 16, were under arrest here today for violating the state prohibition law.

Blanche Cobb, 11, was charged with selling whisky. Edward Awtry, 13, was charged with delivering whisky for his father, John Awtry. Grady Thompson, 16, was arrested in a raid in which his mother, Mrs. M. B. Witt, and his two older sisters, Mrs. Mae Adams and Miss Nina B. Thompson, also were held.

Everglades Burning As Protection Ends

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., July 15.—(AP.)—Fire swept seven sections of the Everglades today just as the Drainage Board of the Swamplands had voted to halt all fire control operations because of lack of funds and jurisdiction.

The area burning has been afflicted by a long drought and firemen said unless there was immediate relief by rains the muck would be rendered useless for agricultural purposes.

Despondent German Burns Children, Self

BREMEN, Germany, July 15.—(AP.)—Despondent over financial troubles, a farmer named Seedorf locked himself and his four children in the basement of his home in nearby Ohlenstedt last night and set fire to the house. When firemen arrived the building had collapsed and all were dead.

British Sub Hero Honored by King

LONDON, July 15.—(AP.)—Patrick Willis, the petty officer who superintended the escape of several of his shipmates when the British submarine, Poseidon, sank off Weihaiwei, China, has been awarded the Albert gold medal by King George.

Indians Retain Woman, Curtis Kin, as Chief

KAW CITY, Okla., July 15.—(AP.)—Kaw Indians voted by a show of hands at a tribal meeting here to retain Mrs. Lucy Tyiah Eads, a distant relative of Vice President Charles Curtis, as their chieftain.

The action ended a reported move by full-bloods to oust the comely Lawrence (Kan.) matron, who has been head of the tribe for nine years.

Mrs. Eads appeared unexpectedly before the tribe on their grounds at Washunga, near here, and made a plea for education and progress, urging the Kaws not to return to primitive ways. She argued she had been chosen to office for life.

The Kaws were assured that Vice President Curtis, himself a member of the tribe, had made an inquiry and learned their claim against the government for payment for former tribal lands, was being adequately pressed.

FLOYD GIBBONS ON 'RUSSIA' :-: Revelers Sing Lehar Music

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, July 15.—Statements from the czars of radio continue to sift into this department to the effect that broadcasting is "still in its infancy."

Nice old standby, this phrase. Did regular service for years in the salons of the movie magnates. And now it's picked up by the radio men. Seems to me radio men are unduly pessimistic. If a half billion dollar industry can be classed as infantile I wonder what radio will be when it finally attains its manhood.

The academicians who hang diction medals upon radio announcers have about completed their task for this year. With ears glued to loudspeakers they have weighed the voices and deliveries of various attention callers, seeking to select some worthy who can take a place in their own particular hall of fame alongside Milton Cross and Alwyn Bach.

Spies, reaching our ears, whisper that among those upon whom final selection rests are Frank Knight, David Ross and Basil Ruysdael, announcers, and Dagmar Perkins and Vida Sutton, radio specialists in better speech.

Broadway producers see in the microphone more and more of a means of replenishing their diminishing cash boxes. They regard it as an effective instrument of advertising their wares, giving just enough of their plays to whet the appetite of the listeners for more. And more can only be obtained by a simple transaction at the box office.

When new Broadway productions are not available the broadcasters do not worry. They reach upon their shelves, dust off old favorites for the armchair, assign them to the few actors they have under contract. The old favorites include "Camille." You can't get away from "Camille." Just when you hope you have heard the last of her depressing existence she bobs up in opera, on the stage, in radio. Can't the broadcasters, at least, let her rest in peace?

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

ODDLY ENOUGH, two of the most promising programs tonight bob up on electrical transcriptions . . . Jim Corbett's discussion of the Stribling - Schmeling fight over KDKA at 6:30 . . . and the Girl Crazy Quartet over KDKA at 8 . . . Floyd Gibbons' discussion of "Russia" on WCAE at 8 might also include an up-to-date analysis of "Germany" . . . Music of Franz Lehar, the Frenchman, is coming into vogue with Herbert and Foster as the most reliable of all repertoires available in the broadcasting libraries . . . The Revelers, Olive Palmer and others give "Impressions of Lehar" over WCAE at 9:30 tonight . . . Don Becker is just another college boy gone wrong in his funny sketch of the "Buddy Boys" over KQV at 9.

Parents of Baby Rose Marie have instituted a $50,000 damage suit against the Red Top Taxicab Company in Newark, the result of the child prodigy being struck by one of the company's vehicles. It is alleged that the accident caused Baby Rose Marie temporary loss of memory and $25,000 in engagements.

Studio Lights

Local engineers aren't trying to dictate styles for women, but they discourage the wearing of beaded dresses in the studios . . . the beads crackle over the air like a machine gun . . .

Yolande Langworthy's suit against CBS for the continued use of her feature, "Arabesque," after she resigned the staff, has been settled out of court. . . .

We had as welcome visitors today Mr. and Mrs. John J. Jackson and family who are returning to New York after a motor tour of the United States . . . they live in the same apartment hotel as Jessica Dragonette . . . "Junior," 15, claims Jessica is his sweetheart, despite rumors of her engagement to a Washington (D. C.) capitalist . . . Mary Jane, 13, proudly asserts that "she advertises herself by Jessica."

"Please sing the bootleg song—'I Love You, Still,'" was one of the squirrely postcards received at KQV yesterday . . .

Which reminds us that Jack and Toney are singing the Blues with unction today, due to the theft of 200 pieces of sheet music from the studio . . .

Discovery: Joseph Sartory's first name is Martin . . . hence, M. Joseph Sartory on dignified WWSW stationery . . .

Fred Waring becomes a noun and adjective man for WJAS Friday night at 8:45, when he announces a special program by himself, Charlie Henderson and the Three Girl Friends . . .

Weber and Fields are averse to signing a new contract on the radio after expiration of their present series on WCAE Monday, July 27 . . .

Description of the operation of the new U. S. submarine rescue chamber from the submarine base at New London, Conn., is booked for WCAE tomorrow afternoon at 6 o'clock . . .

WIBA at Madison, Wis., goes NBC this Saturday . . . but that still leaves CBS the leader with 85 stations to 83 . . .

The Wastebasket

Perhaps the question that we are asked more times a day than any other is, "How did Francis Owen pick on the name 'The Wastebasket' for his Sunday night radio feature?"

We cornered Francis in a restaurant the other night and obtained from him this first-hand confession of how it all came about:

"While I was going through a publishing plant, I came upon an old man hidden away in a stockroom among rolls of printing paper, busily engaged in sorting over the accumulated contents of wastebaskets before their refuse was baled and disposed of.

"I noticed that every envelope he came across was held up to a strong light to determine if anything of value remained inclosed.

"Thousands of dollars monthly in overlooked stamps and checks and orders were found by this aged worker and turned in.

"Immediately I conceived the idea that if such value was discovered among stenographers' mistakes and office refuse, why shouldn't I dig into the wastebaskets of memory—meaning scrapbooks and accumulated clippings of years—and there, too, find not checks and stamps, but gems of thought.

"Therefore when opportunity came to present a program made up of these gleanings from our shrine of recollections, I could find no better name than 'The Wastebasket.'"

Martin Johnson, African explorer, is to be interviewed by Grantland Rice on WCAE next Wednesday night.

TELL IT TO SALLY

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By SALLY MARTIN

Which Should Man Save First, His Mother or Wife?

His wife—or his mother?

That's the argument that's causing a riot just now in the Brown family—and maybe in yours as well—

It all started in fun . . . because of an ancient riddle that someone dug up and sprang on Jim and Florence. That hoary riddle about the gent who found himself in a sinking boat with The Little Woman and Mamma—and could save only one—

And Jim and Florence began kidding each other about it. But they've stopped kidding now—because to Florence's horror, Jim seemed to think it was Mamma who should be saved!

What do you think?

"Dear Sally Martin:

"I am so unhappy that I just don't know what to do. Maybe when I tell you how all this started, you will think it is just too silly to bother with. But it is mighty serious to me. In fact it is about to wreck my marriage and ruin my whole life.

"Jim and I have been married for just a few months, and we were so happy, until we got into a terrible argument about which should some first—a man's mother or his wife.

STARTED AS JOKE

"It all began in fun. We were so happy and devoted that our friends used to kid us about it. Then, one day, a friend told us an old riddle, about a man who was out in a boat with his wife and his mother, and the boat foundered. This man could save only one, and the 'riddle' part was, which should it be? His wife or his mother?

"Jim and I laughed over it, and began to kid each other. There wasn't anything serious about it at first, but it finally led to a terrible quarrel.

"I thought, of course, that Jim would be gallant, and say he would save me. But he seemed to take it seriously, and to think that, in any case of a choice like that, his mother should always come first, before me!

WANTS TO BE FAIR

"You can't know how terribly hurt I was when he said that. I just couldn't believe it at first. He always had seemed to love me so deeply. And before we knew it, we were almost at each other's throats. And now we hardly speak to each other. I know Jim is unhappy, too, but he insists that he is right—that he has taken the only side that a decent man could take.

"I love him, but nothing is the same any more. I feel as if something dreadful had come between us. But I do want to be fair. And maybe I am wrong. Maybe a man does owe more to his mother than he does to his wife. Jim insists that he does. He says his mother gave him life, and took care of him when he was helpless, and taught him how to live . . . and that he would have to choose her before me, no matter what it cost him.

"Do you believe he is right? Oh! I wish this miserable argument had never come up. We were so happy! And now I don't know whether we can ever get over our anger and be happy again or not.

"Please tell me—or maybe some of your readers can tell me—which one of us is right?

"FLORENCE."

Well, how about it, Gang?

Who should come first? The Little Woman? Or Mamma? Which one would you save—if you could save only one—and why?

Many Girls Who Yearn for Fame in Filmland Lured by Fairy Tales—Fay King

SHE'D LIKE TO RUN AWAY TO SEEK HER FORTUNE
FAY KING
HER HEAD IS FILLED WITH FAIRY TALES ABOUT FAME AND FORTUNE
TOO OFTEN SHE FINDS ONLY DISAPPOINTMENT

It used to be that only the boys of the family were seized with wanderlust to go far into the world to seek their fortune.

That was because all the books of adventure and success had for their heroes boys who climbed from humble beginnings to the heights.

But in these days girls are even more restless to go forth and find that easy fame and fortune they read about in the fairy tales of filmland.

And many of them do, but soon find, to their sorrow, that much they have been led to believe is only the flowering imagination of clever publicity experts. Just as most of the success stories for boys were only the fertile genius of clever story spinners.

Madge Wonders About Mrs. Ticer's Uneasiness

My worry over the queer look in Mrs. Ticer's eyes as she looked at me, remained with me even though I had no time to dwell upon it during the next few minutes following Harry Underwood's question concerning the person who was responsible for the exquisite lily pool, which had been fashioned back of the rose garden as a surprise to me when I came home from the hospital. Both Harry and Lillian Underwood were asking interested questions, while Junior and Roderick were quite beside themselves. They had dropped flat on the ground when they saw the goldfishes flitting through the water, dappled with sunlight, and shaded by the lily pads and the trailing vines, and were giving vent to shrill little yelps of joyful excitement.

"O-oh, Rod; see that shiner!" Junior exclaimed. "Lookit! He got a mosquito. And there's a tadpole—one, two, three of 'em! They'll grow to be frogs after a while, won't they Mums?"

He looked up at me, and I smiled at his delight, nodded assent, while I gave one ear to Sam Ticer's delighted but shy reception of the encomiums Harry and Lillian were showering upon him at Dicky's wave of the hand toward him and his subsequent announcement that our neighbor was the man who had built the pool.

"Shucks! I didn't have so much to do with it," he said. "Jerry, here, he helped me some, and so did Jim. Of course I know something about concrete work, and building frames, and all that."

"I'll testify to that little fact in any court of law," Dicky said with a grin. "You're sure there in that line. You see," he went on, "it isn't so hard building a square pool or an oblong one. The frames of those are comparatively easy to do, just four sides of boards measured to fit the inside of your pool and an inner corresponding frame six inches or more from the outer one, depending upon the width you want your wall. Then you fill in your concrete, hold your breath and trust in the Lord, all other people cash. But a round pool! That takes brains and instinct."

"Both of which we know our neighbor possesses," Harry Underwood said, but behind the hidden gibe, which made Dicky bite his lips, I knew there was genuine appreciation of our neighbor's skill, and Sam Ticer's lean face fairly glowed as he listened.

"Yes, a round pool is harder," he said, "but we finally got there. That was only the beginning, though, getting the concrete in. It wouldn't look very pretty, just a big round hole in the ground, if Mr. Graham hadn't got busy with the plants and fish."

"During which process I fancy somebody's private till was pretty well tapped," Harry Underwood said shrewdly. "I'm not long on flora and fauna and fishia — please don't kill me, anybody — but I have a modicum of common sense—"

"Yeah?" Dicky drawled, provocatively, but his friend ignored him loftily.

"And I know that plants in this perfection of bloom — in fact, the whole finished appearance of this—aren't the result of normal growth in this short time. There was no sign of this when we went away."

"There wasn't any when Madge went to the hospital," Dicky explained with pardonable pride. "Father and I planned it as a welcome home surprise for her, and I'll admit it did put a dent in a century or two, besides entailing two or three trips over here on the part of the New Jersey man, who is the last word on water landscapes. But it was all worth it when we saw Madge take her first look at it. She was like a kid with a Christmas stocking."

His voice was filled with tenderness, to which I thrilled, and I flashed him a glance of loving gratitude. I flashed him something else an instant later—a little signal upon which he instantly acted.

"It's to Mrs. Ticer we owe the finishing touches," he said, and I watched whether her natural feminine susceptibility to praise would banish the worried look I had seen in her eyes. But evidently hers was too deep-seated a worry to be vanquished by any personal gratification, and, though her lips smiled tremulously, and I knew that she was tremendously pleased by Dicky's tribute her eyes were still troubled pools.

"Yes," I broke into the conversation, ruthlessly, "Mrs. Ticer brought all this color, they tell me, and planted all the myrtle."

I gestured toward the rough stones outlining the edge of the pool, among which the yellow of coreopsis, the deep blue of the "ragged sailor" and the white of the delicate, yet ever enduring, sweet alyssum gave the necessary color against the glossy green of the myrtle tendrils.

"Shucks!" My neighbor echoed her husband's protest of a few minutes earlier—it is a family expletive. "The plants were all here in your own gardens."

I shook my head at her.

"Granted the coreopsis and the myrtle, perennials both," I said, "but those blue and white annuals never came from anywhere else than your own garden patch. And Dicky has told me how you came up here twice a day to be sure that the plants were watered properly. He said you wouldn't trust anybody else to do it."

"Well, you know the old saying," she said, shrewdly. "And they did stand up well, if I do say it, as shouldn't. I wish you'd look at this corey over here. It has more buds on one plant than I ever saw before."

She stepped a few paces aside and I followed with her, and bent over the plant which she indicated. I guessed that her remark had been a subterfuge, had my guess confirmed an instant later, when she whispered:

"I must talk to you. I saw Hallam today."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Severe Dieting More Harmful Than Obesity

Many persons grow fat. But in spite of their remorse and apparent dismay, they continue habits which increase their weight.

Dr. Copeland

As a rule, I am not in favor of vigorous dieting. I believe this has become too much of a fad in recent years. What with diets, daily advertised, there is no doubt that harm is being done.

For persons who are overweight, I advise restriction of food. But severe dieting, with sudden and marked loss of weight, will do more harm to the body than overweight can possibly do.

Obesity, as a rule, is the result of excessive eating. In most cases, when appetite is controlled, the weight is reduced.

I have observed individuals who refrain from eating nourishing food, which is required, yet who indulge freely in pastries, sweets, and other fattening foods. These foods are not needed by the body, but they do greatly facilitate increase in weight.

If you would be thinner, the amount of food taken must be diminished, but not entirely eliminated, of course. Foods containing necessary vitamins and imported proteins must be included in the diet. Excessive eating of carbohydrates can be omitted without damage to the body.

Eating between meals is not essential to health. Indeed, it is one of the chief sins of the obese. In attempting to reduce, the first rule to follow is absolute avoidance of between-meal eating. Common sense management of daily eating must be practiced if loss of weight is desired.

The individual who really is desirous of losing weight and is co-operative and intelligent, can do so without injury to his health. He must train himself to temperance, and though the results may take time, it is the only safe method.

Loss of weight must be gradual. A loss of two pounds a week is sufficient and one should not endeavor to lose more. Rapid reduction in weight will injure the health by impairing the strength of the heart and nervous system.

Please remember that a reduction in weight requires the formation of new eating habits. Once these have been acquired, you will be able to hold your new weight without any supreme effort.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

A healthy girl should fall asleep quickly. If she is restless, stays awake, there is a reason. Constipation is a common cause of wakefulness. Too hearty a dinner will interfere with sleep. There should be a moving current of air in the room. The pillow should be low, bed clothing light. And the mind free of worries.

Scars are caused by the destruction of tissue. If only the skin and upper tissues are injured, Missus Nature comes along and does a good mending job. Deep wounds that have dug into the fibers and muscles may produce scars that can be cured only by cosmetic surgery. A new incision is made, the edges of the wound are carefully spliced together. Fresh injuries should be treated with ointment of zinc oxide.

Short hair is as popular as ever. The long bob is as popular as ever. It is nip and tuck between them. The long bob with the little walnut knob at the back makes a girl look older, and that's why some of the longies are chopping off their locks again.

Home scalp treatment; part the hair at various places and apply with a medicine dropper a tonic made by combining two ounces of castor oil and alcohol. Spread thumbs and fingers over the scalp. Lift the scalp away from the skull with the thumbs, holding the fingers stationary. Treat the entire surface until the flesh glows. Brush the hair vigorously from the nape of the neck forward and from either side of the middle parting. Next morning have a rousing old shampoo with a melted soap.

Children and Independence

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

There have been many arguments pro and con concerning the newer treatment of children which accords them the right to think independently and, in consequence, act without asking Mother before proceeding in any direction.

I favor instilling a healthy respect for law and order in the home, but, when it comes to decisions which are totally personal to the child, how else can the youngster learn and grow if he or she is never allowed to make them?

I heard a mother severely brought to task by another mother for letting her little girl of 6 lay out the clothes she was to wear that afternoon to a birthday party. The child had been told by her wise mother to pick out the dress, shoes, stockings and underwear she would like to wear. They were neatly laid on the child's bed, when she called to Mother.

Mother arrived to inspect the selection. Little Girl's flesh-colored gown was picked, flesh-colored short sox, tiny pink silk undergarment and white kid shoes. Mother approved, and the child went to the party feeling comfortable, well-dressed, and with a certain air of self-respect which comes when we know we have made a choice and are sure it is right.

Personally, I can't see why a child of five or six should not have a voice in the purchase of clothing and a voice in choosing what to wear. His or her good taste can be developed, choices can be guided so that the child knows how to choose appropriate clothing for each occasion.

And apart from this growing knowledge of harmonizing color, wearing the proper outfit for the specific occasion, etc., there is a big psychological factor concerned in his being comfortable and free from self-consciousness which is often engendered through wearing clothes he dislikes or feels conspicuous in.

In allowing your child to choose articles of apparel you will notice that he wants things like the other children wear. For a child hates to feel "different" from his companions. The individual taste, the individual flair will come with maturity, but give him the foundation for good taste by allowing him to exercise it while he is still where you can gently guide it and mold it correctly.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Visiting Card for the Clergyman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me the size of a minister's visiting card? Is the name of the church to be on the card, and the telephone number? Please show exactly how the card should be. We will call the pastor—

Rev. Jones Jones,
Telephone Franklin 2137.
Federated Church of Jonesville.

An excellent size for the card of a clergyman is three and one-quarter inches long and one and a half inches wide.

The Rev. Charles Daniel Peck,
The Federated Church of Jonesville,
Park Place and Chapel Street.

It is not customary to put the telephone number on this kind of a card.

Keep Good Taste in the Shower Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am to be married soon. I have a step-father. Is it proper to have his name on the wedding invitations? Just how should they be worded? I am using my own name.

2. It is an evening wedding. Should the maid of honor wear a hat? E.

1. It is the best of form for you to issue your invitations in the names of your mother and stepfather. And, if your devotion warrants it—and I hope that it does—word it like this:

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Payne request the honor of your presence
at the marriage of their daughter
Miss Dorothy Ward Allen
to

(When the last name on the first line differs from the last name on the sixth line, it is customary to use the title before the bride's name. I have indicated this.)

If you prefer—although it isn't the best form—you may use:

At the marriage of Mrs. Payne's daughter.

2. At an evening wedding, the attendants usually wear hats, but ingenious brides often have clever ideas for head coverings that seem more appropriate for evening. Some interesting kind of bandeau, for instance. Too, nowadays, with such attractive kinds of evening turbans, metal cloth, chiffon, net or tulle, something of this kind might appeal to you.

Household Hints

After cleaning brass rub it lightly over with furniture or floor polish. It will retain its brightness much longer.

Is the top of your bureau or dressing table cluttered with a variety of objects. Too many articles, no matter how handsome, spoil the effect of the room.

On the back of daddy's leather chair there is apt to be a grease spot caused by the tonic or dressing he uses on his hair. This can be removed by spreading over it a paste of fullers' earth and water. Let dry and brush off.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1931, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Gag

Tom Mix bought a very costly yacht and joined one of the snootier yacht clubs on the coast. The Commodore of the Club scolded Mix for wearing the wrong yachting attire and told him it was too loud.

"Mr. Mix," he said, "it is customary for the crew to wear uniforms, but the owners wear white flannels and blue sport coats."

"Well," asked Tom, "what's wrong with this outfit?"

"Oh," groaned the Commodore, "those brass buttons!"

Observation

Izzy Elinson would have you believe that things have come to a pretty pass when a hot dog peddler in the Wall street sector has a sign on his wagon reading "Business Men's Lunch."

Heheheh

And Hugh Wedlock, Jr., reports that times are so difficult that actors are hiring themselves out to miniature golf course owners as—obstacles.

The Retort Proper

They credit it to Merle Thorpe, editor of Nation's Business, and it is called the best Depression Story.

A schoolboy in the lumbering district was being catechized by his teacher and was getting along fairly well.

"Now, Johnny," she said, "tell me, how many mills make a cent?"

"Not a —— one!"

Merciless Truth

Another reason for the depression, observes George White, the producer, is that too many people overwork themselves looking for soft jobs.

Epigrams

Dana L. Cotie observes that enough has been said and written about business recovery to fill almost every kind of a book—except a bank book.

Of All Answers!

From M. H. Nelson comes the repartee he asserts he overheard between a salesman and his prospect, to-wit:

Prospect: "Why should I advertise? Everybody knows me!"

Salesman: "Everybody knows where the church is—but they ring the bell every Sunday just the same!"

Prospect: "That settles it. I'll have to get me a bell."

Anything for a Laugh

It was on the pavement outside the Temple Emanu-El just before the services commenced for the late Harry Reichenbach, who was one of the more devastating wits.

Such wags as the Mayor, Harry Hershfield, Walter Winchell and another W. W. were swapping yarns and gags about Reichenbach.

"Gee," whispered Hershfield, "I imagine people think we're terrible for cracking jokes at a funeral."

"If they knew him the way we knew him," one of us replied, "Reichenbach is only sore because he can't be here trying to TOP us!"

Nifty

Bob Quillen swifties that it is strange indeed that no one has invented a fly trap resembling a bald head.

How to Get Gray Young

"Dear Sir: You are becoming the best hated scribe on Broadway. Does the security of your contract entitle you to hurt people? That was such a contemptible headline on your column about the Follies girls—'The Ziegfeld Zoo.'

"With elaborate trimmings, we understand a 'zoo' to be a collection of beasts and animals, etc. In your opinion, are these girls just a mere collection of beasts? You may not mean to be offensive, Walter, but you are lately becoming damnably so.—P. V. Fitzpatrick, 2133 Wallace Ave., Bronx."

And there are people who read that column and hissed!

"You're on Ziegfeld's payroll, aren't you?"

Oop!

"Dear Winchell," affectionately writes Billy Rose, producer of "Crazy Quilt," the revusical hit at the Forty-fourth Street Theater, "you have disappointed me greatly lately. Everything you say nowadays is a compliment for somebody. My goodness, Walter! That isn't you! Leave the saccharine and posies to the other fellows. When I want vitriol I read Winchell. Where's that hammer of yours, anyhow?"

"Crazy Quilt" is the show which stars Fannie Brice, Mr. Rose's wife. It also features Lew Brice, her brother.

A Form of Criticism

Lee Shubert, the producer, in an interview with the N. Y. Times, is as emphatic as ever concerning dramatic critics.

"There is not a man living," he says, "who can speak for the public in regard to the merits of a play."

Except, of course, Lee Shubert.

The Squelch Swelegant

"Aw! Go count y'self! You ain't so many!"

Leader

Fred Waring will bring his Pennsylvanians, musical boys, into the Penn Friday as the feature stage attraction.

Douglas and Mary, Forgetting Old Screen Routine, Plan New Trip

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, July 15.

Between golf and the wanderlust, Douglas Fairbanks has small time these days for his old enthusiasm—motion pictures.

His mind is full of a new trip. He and Mary leave here in the fall for Norway, where Doug will fish—and then they go to Switzerland, presumably to be in St. Moritz for the holidays. After that, a trip to India is on the schedule. . . . Doug says he knows the ropes there now, and that Mary must not miss this part of the Orient.

The ways of the two part in the East. Mary returns to Hollywood while Doug goes to Africa to do a little hunting and, I fancy, to shoot a picture, this time with the definite idea of releasing it as a super-travelogue.

Douglas Fairbanks

The film of the last trip was taken more or less tongue in cheek and its commercial value was not recognized until Doug's return to Hollywood. Characteristically, however, he now speaks of it with enthusiasm.

It has grown, too, into a feature-length picture. One shot of Victor Fleming killing a leopard as it leaped for an elephant is described by Doug as especially thrilling. The star himself got four leopards, a wild bear, a tiger and a giant lizard—or about one kill to every 33 hunting suits he received from maharajahs.

THE MAIN THING

Ruby (in New York): "I miss you so much."

Al (in Hollywood): "That's fine."

Ruby: "Well, do you miss me?"

Al: "We won't worry about that, if you miss me, that's all that matters."

LATEST GOSSIP

Poor Renee Adoree has had a setback in her fight for health. Fortunately, Lila Lee, who spent some time at the same Prescott sanitarium, is doing fine. It would not surprise me if she and Johnny Farrow were married before the year is out . . . The Bannisters, Harry and Ann, are flying to Cuba as soon as Ann finishes "Alias Mrs. Halifax." It seems Havana has memories for the star of "Holiday." Her father was stationed there when she was a little girl . . . Hollywood is buzzing about the new Chevalier picture, "The Smiling Lieutenant," and the star is having to share the spotlight with Miriam Hopkins, ex-Broadwayite. She's a hit . . . Anna May Wong created a stir among the autograph seekers on her arrival at the premiere of this picture. For an evening wrap, she wore a Chinese ceremonial robe that once adorned an idol. It was snatched from the shrine during a pillaging foray in Peiping (Peking to you) a number of years ago. Lloyd Corrigan, the Chinese star's director, escorted her to the premiere . . . Here's a bit of news that defies tradition. A Hollywood couple celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary—the Paul Sloans are the lucky ones . . . Roland West is no fool. He has bought a new yacht, and now he's arranged to live aboard it for three weeks, directing "Corsair," Chester Morris' new picture . . . Sally O'Neill gets a break at last. Fox has signed her to a long-term contract for her work in "The Brat."

Title Bout On Fulton Screen

As an added attraction, the Fulton will show motion pictures of the Schmeling-Stribling fight in Cleveland, opening Friday. The fight film will be shown in addition to "Confessions of a Co-Ed," with Phillips Holmes and Sylvia Sidney. The contest in the Cleveland stadium is shown in complete detail, and has the knock-out in both slow motion and regular speed. The lighting of the stadium was such that the camera caught every bit of action, and the pictures are said to be as clear and sharp as though they had been taken in a studio.

RUSSIAN STEEL PERIL DENIED

CLEVELAND, July 15.—(AP.)—The rest of the world was advised today by R. E. Baker, secretary and treasurer of Arthur G. McKee & Company, Cleveland engineers, to quit worrying about Russia as an international competitor in manufactured goods.

Russia's own vast boundaries, coupled with inadequate transportation, will keep her busy with her own needs for many years, according to Baker, whose company designed and is supervising the construction of a steel plant at Magnitogorsk, which the Soviet government hopes to make the largest in the world. Baker said:

"When you realize that this great steel plant at Magnitogorsk, with a steel capacity of 2,100,000 tons of steel per year, could put that whole capacity into steel rails for the whole life of the plant without producing enough to give Russia a competent transportation system, you quit worrying about Russia being a menace."

Pantages Must Face Attack Trial Again

LOS ANGELES, July 15.—(INS.)—Although Louis Fisher, one of the principal state witnesses, was dead from injuries received in an accident, the district attorney's office today denied that Eunice Pringle's attack case against Alexander Pantages, theater magnate, would be dropped.

TANKS IN ACTION AT MT. GRETNA

MT. GRETNA, Pa., July 15.—(AP.)—The National Guard camp here took on a wartime picture today as three regiments went about tactical and combat problems.

In addition to a regiment of engineers and two regiments of infantry, the three tanks of the Norristown company lumbered into action while officers under Capt. George M. Harvey checked the accuracy of their machine gunners. In another part of the reservation, several battalions of the 109th Infantry fired at the same kind of targets set up for the tankers. Other battalions of the 109th Infantry and the entire 110th Infantry alternated on the rifle and pistol range.

The 103rd Engineers were set to work constructing a pontoon bridge. Rookies were organized into a special school under the instruction of Lieut. Guy Parson.

Both the 109th and 110th will hold regimental parades late today. Besides the regimental officers, Brig. Gen. Edward Martin, commanding the 55th Infantry Brigade, also will be in the reviewing stand. The 109th will muster 1,065 men for the parade and the 110th will have 1,080.

SLEUTHS' BULLETS ROUT 3 HOLDING UP PARKED AUTO

Kline Swings Police Aid to Armstrong

COYNE LOOMING AS RUNNING MATE

Mansfield's Position Clouded As Rumor Places Him With Each of Rival Factions

State Senator W. D. Mansfield's announcement for county commissioner, while expected, has political tongues wagging today as to its effect on probable slates.

One of the immediate results was an open indication that Mayor Charles H. Kline will support the campaign of Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong.

This brought a general belief in political circles that Armstrong and State Senator James J. Coyne, a chief Kline lieutenant, would be joint candidates for commissionerships. They long have been bitter political enemies.

POLICE SIGN PETITIONS

The indication of the Mayor's position was given last night, less than 24 hours after Mansfield's announcement, when Armstrong nominating petitions were distributed to the various police stations for signatures. They were signed at roll call last night and this morning, recalling Mayor Kline's famous "bread and butter" speech of a previous campaign, in which city employes practically were told to support the Mayor's choice of candidates or look for new jobs—"civil service or no civil service."

It was at first believed the Mayor had ordered the distribution. Later it was discovered the petitions had been sent direct from the Armstrong headquarters, where it apparently is regarded as certain that the Mayor will give his support to the present commissioner.

When Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh made a casual inquiry today, he was told that the petitions had been sent by Armstrong lieutenants. He thereupon remarked:

M'GOVERN SILENT

It has been rumored that Commissioner C. C. McGovern, who is expected to be an independent Republican candidate to succeed himself, would join with Mansfield when the latter declared, and the two would try to win the majority nominations in the primary. McGovern, however, declined to break his silence on the subject yesterday.

Another supposition was that Armstrong would angle for Mansfield as a running mate for the strength the latter might corral in the sections outside Pittsburgh.

Some of the more practical politicians seemed to believe the Mansfield move, with an implied McGovern hookup, would bring about an early announcement of the organization ticket headed by Coyne and Armstrong.

Coyne was quoted more than once in the last month or so as having said he would run with or against Armstrong. Armstrong has refused to talk seriously about a running mate and dismissed inquiries by saying he was interested only in his own candidacy.

Major Crimes Laid To Young Prisoners

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—(INS.)—Superior Court officials here took notice when the annual summer term opened. Thirteen offenders presented to answer serious charges ranged in age from 15 to 19 years. Burglary, robbery, assault and theft of automobiles were amoung the charges. The court took steps to have the youngsters cared for.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

CLAREMORE, Okla., July 15.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, it was a great day for Gatty and Post. It was just an ordinary day for Claremore, but it was a big thing for those boys. They never saw a town like ours. We built a real airport in four days just to welcome 'em. I was with 'em in Tulsa and flew over here in the Winnie Mae with them. It's the combination of the two that makes 'em so great. I'd bet on 'em going around the world endways and cross both poles. In all the excitement and rushing about you know when they sleep—at the banquets. They said if it wasn't for banquets they wouldn't have any time to sleep at all. Smart fellows. Yours, WILL.

SHRINER SELECT POTENTATE

CLEVELAND, July 15.—(AP.)—Thomas J. Houston, past potentate of Medinah Temple, Chicago, today was elected imperial potentate of the Ancient and Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. He succeeds Esten A. Fletcher, of Damascus Temple, Rochester, N. Y.

All other officers were advanced to the next highest position.

The new imperial potentate is 54 and for years has been prominent in various orders of Masonry.

Houston will review a torchlight parade tonight. Ten thousand marchers are expected to carry their flaming lights of many colors.

Approximately 40,000 persons attended the Shrine pageant, "A Night in the Orient," last night.

As the divan met to select the convention city, San Francisco appeared to be favored by the officials. Chicago was a strong contender.

New York Artist Wins Legion Award

DETROIT — (INS.) — A New York artist, Fred Ludekins, designed the official poster of the American Legion's annual national convention, which will be held here September 21 to 24, according to announcement. Honorable mention was given to Foster and Kleiner, San Francisco.

COUNCIL KEEPS SWISSVALE'S POLICE HEAD

Suspension to Be Counted As His Vacation; Burgess Scored by Committeeman

Police Chief William Campbell, of Swissvale, suspended two weeks ago by Burgess William T. Pyle, was reinstated with full pay by Borough Council last night. A report by Chairman Ross Wilson, of the police committee, recommending the chief be dismissed, drew fire from Councilman John Soles. He said:

"This is making a mountain out of a mole hill. The charge that the chief was out of the borough without anyone knowing it is silly. If we are going to pin the chief down like this I think we should begin with the burgess. He is never here when he should be."

Campbell's suspension was counted as his vacation.

Pittsburgh Baby Beauties Center of Interest In Picnic Contest

Beautiful babies are the outstanding subjects of conversation in hundreds of Pittsburgh homes since the announcement of the second annual Sun-Telegraph-Kroger Stores baby beauty contest scheduled as the important feature for the Kroger Stores' picnic in beautiful Kennywood Park Tuesday, August 4.

Although it is only 10 days since the first announcement of this contest was made in the Sun-Telegraph, hundreds of entries have already come in, and it is needless to say that these entries include many unusually beautiful children, for which Pittsburgh is noted.

Child beauty is the only thing that counts in this contest. Clothes will not be considered—neither will the physical condition be considered other than as it would apply to the beauty of the child. In other words, this is not a contest to find the healthiest or the best-dressed babies—beauty is the only thing that counts.

There are three classes for boys and girls under 5 years of age, and glorious silver cups will be awarded as prizes to the children selected as the most beautiful—three in each class. Impartial judges will make the awards.

Among the hundreds of babies already entered are Joy Eichhorn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Eichhorn, of Wilmerding, and Norma Jeanne McCune, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Casper McCune, Irwin, Pa.

Entry blanks are now ready at your nearest Kroger store. There is no cost to you. The Sun-Telegraph and the Kroger Stores will welcome your children in this unique contest. Enter your babies today—win one of the glorious silver cups.

Charges of Cheating In Fireworks Sales Pushed by Garland

Charges that hundreds of fireworks dealers secured their "licenses" somewhere else besides the Public Safety Department were on record today by Councilman Robert Garland as Council prepared to conduct a sweeping survey into irregularities in the issuing of permits.

Public Safety Director James M. Clark and Controller James P. Kerr reported yesterday only 79 permits had been issued. Each cost $50. Garland said:

"There were at least 2,000 persons selling fireworks in the city before July 4. Why, I know of one ward where there were at least 79 merchants selling. The others must have received their licenses somewhere else than from Director Clark."

Garland characterized the revenue derived from the fireworks legislation as "blood money."

An investigation was ordered by Council to determine why police did not check on the stores in their districts for fireworks license violations. Garland said he expected to have a detailed report on the matter by next Monday.

'Bugs' Recalls Something About German Marks

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Is Germany crying with a loaf of bread under its arm?

We haven't forgotten that mark business in 1923, because we still have the kitchen papered with affidavits in a strange language.

We also have some 1923 certificates entitling us to kronens, rubles and pfennigs. Three words that later became the foundation of the cross-word puzzle industry.

The European financial center is now a bedside with the world's greatest dollar doctors trying to pull the patient through the pay window.

Andy Mellon, Laval and MacDonald are doing some expensive huddling now that Germany has grabbed Turkey's title as the sick man of Europe.

One touch of deferred payments seems to make the whole world kin. What Germany is really suffering from is an overdose of five-year plans every two hours.

The whole world climbed on its back and then wondered why it got round shouldered.

FLEEING BANDIT HIT, DECLARES CONSTABLE

Four in Car Held Up Along Tarentum Road, Robbed of Cash; Marauders Sought

Two white men and a Negro who fled in a hail of bullets after they had robbed the occupants of a parked automobile near the St. Clair Country Club were being hunted today by police.

One of the bandits is believed to have been shot, according to Constable H. H. Schweinbraten and Deputy Constable J. S. Kletzli, of Upper St. Clair Township, who surprised them as they started away from the parked machine.

The victims, Joseph Potter, 19, of Central Square Apartments, Mt. Lebanon; Elmer Bartek, 17, of 102 Atlanta avenue, Mt. Lebanon, and Miss Margaret Hansen, 16, of 2801 Crosby avenue, Dormont, said they lost a small amount of money and some jewelry.

In the chase which followed, the constables fired seven shots at the robbers, one of whom was seen to stagger and fall. He was assisted in his getaway by the others.

J. J. O'Neil, a male companion, and two women, were robbed of $35 by three armed men who stopped their automobile in Bakerstown road, near Tarentum, late last night, according to Tarentum police. O'Neil gave his address as 4202 Highland Building, East Liberty. The address is fictitious, police say.

SUIT OPPOSES ZONE CHANGE

An injunction to restrain the city from exempting one piece of property out of an area of about a dozen blocks in the Schenley Heights district for the erection of a store in a Class A residential district is sought in an equity suit filed in Common Pleas Court.

The suit was filed by Attorney H. D. Hirsh for Elizabeth O'Brien, of 904 Bryn Mawr road, against the city and M. Solomon, owner of 902 Bryn Mawr road. It alleged an ordinance adopted June 13 changed the Solomon property to commercial class, the first change since the district was zoned as A residential in 1923. The suit asked an injunction against the city to have the ordinance declared invalid. Judge James H. Gray fixed July 24 for a hearing.

Clark Chided, Police Board Fires 2 in Attack Case

Public Safety Director James M. Clark was chided today by Inspector Albert Beebe during a police trial board hearing of two North Side patrolmen for an alleged attack upon Albert Funfar, 30, of 1153 Basin street. The officers, who were suspended by Lieut. John J. Joyce on a charge of intoxication, were recommended for dismissal.

In their testimony the officers, James Dignan and Alphonse Pacella, both of the North Side Police Station, said they merely drank near beer which they obtained in a Goettman tstree speakeasy.

Clark asked Pacella:

"Do you know the difference between near beer and real beer?"

Pacella said he did.

Clark continued his questioning and was interrupted by Inspector Beebe, one of the members of the trial board, who criticized the public safety director, saying his questioning was irrevalent. He added:

"I am tired of this kidding."

Inspector Charles Faulkner, another member, interposed:

"So am I."

The trial then proceeded.

Funfar, it was testified, was attacked by Patrolman Dignan without provocation on July 9 while sitting in an automobile with Miss Gertrude Wall, 27, of 1332 Goettman street, in front of whose home the attack occurred.

Funfar is still in Allegheny General Hospital.

DAVIS PRAISES NEGRO POSTAL WORKERS

National Alliance Also Hears Coleman, Taylor, McGovern and Anderson

Service rendered by Negro postal workers was praised by Senator James J. Davis, speaking at the sixth biennial convention of the National Alliance of Postal Employes in the Ebenezer Baptist Church, Center avenue and Devilliers street, last night. Other speakers were County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, First Assistant Postmaster General Arch Coleman, Postmaster James B. Anderson and Assistant City Solicitor R. C. Taylor.

Senator Davis said:

"By your individual and collective efforts you do a great deal more work than any other postal force in the world. This is a country where the individual shines. When we lose our individualism we are lost. It is likewise a country of loyalty. The man at the helm of the Republic can be trusted to do all that is humanly and legally possible to promote the general welfare."

WELCOMES DELEGATES

Commissioner McGovern said:

"Allegheny County and the City of Pittsburgh have much to offer you. We want you to enjoy it all. The three county commissioners spend for the general fiscal management of the County about $50,000,000 a year. The County, with a population of 1,600,000, has 800 miles of excellent highways, and 400 bridges ranging in cost from $35,000 to $7,000,000. The vicinity abounds in historic interest. I welcome you on behalf of the County."

TRACES SERVICE GROWTH

Postmaster Anderson traced the growth of the postal service. He said:

"Each generation has handed down this profession amplified and improved."

First business sessions of the convention were to begin today. A tour of the city was to be made during the afternoon, when wreaths were to be placed on the grave of Stephen C. Foster, composer of Negro melodies. A one-hour singing service was to be held at the Foster homestead, 3600 Penn avenue at 4 p. m.

The tour will end with a visit to the Air Mail Flower Show at 967 Penn avenue, where there will be displays of flowers received by air mail from Los Angeles, New Orleans, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Jamaica, New York, and other cities.

MANY TREATED WITH LIGHT

Nine hundred and five light treatments were given patients in the Tuberculosis League Hospital, Bedford avenue and Wandless street, in June, according to a report issued today by Alice E. Stewart, general superintendent of the league. Of this number, 350 were sun treatments and the remainder artificial light.

These treatments have been used by the Tuberculosis League since heliotherapy has received recognition in the treatment of tuberculosis. A bulletin issued by the National Tuberculosis Association, an affiliated organization, warns sufferers against submitting to light treatments except under expert prescription.

As much harm as good can be done, the publication says, by indiscriminate use of heliotherapy because the science is still in an experimental stage.

YOUNG ARTIST SUPPORTS SELF

In the garret of an abandoned convent at 1711 Liberty avenue, in a room adjacent to the one from which John Kane painted his picture of the "Strip," there lives another artist, 16, out of work and seeking an education.

Since the death of his father and the removal of his invalid mother to the city hospital at Mayview a year ago, Emil Sitka has strived to eke out a living doing odd jobs after school hours. He attends Central Catholic High School.

In what spare time a pupil who earns his own living has, Emil paints and sketches. With a set of paints discarded by John Kane, he recently completed his first attempt at oils—Niagara Falls.

The walls of the third-floor room are covered with the youth's pencil and charcoal sketches of persons whose likenesses appear in newspapers. He has never attended an art school.

The room was given Emil by the Rev. Father James R. Cox. Food and clothing are problems which the boy must solve himself.

Emil wants work of any kind, but most of all he wants employment that would teach him painting and drawing.

Despite the temperamental stock market, society people are opening their summer places, and many will be gone throughout the summer. Already a surprising number may be found in the East and in Canada.

Of course there are always some folks here at home, many of whom occupy their Sewickley or Coraopolis homes and others who have summer places near the city.

Away for Summer

Mrs. John L. Black and her daughter Mary and her son John L. Black Jr. are at their summer home in Canada, "Hillcrest," Port Hope, Ont.

The Thomas H. Eddys have opened "Somoset," their place in Watch Hill, R. I., and the J. Frank Drakes and their daughters, Virginia and Constance, and their son, J. F. Drake, Jr., have been at their summer home, "Out-o-Bounds," at Hyannisport, Mass., for some time.

MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

Hope for Future, Club Women's Head Says

"May we profit by the past, take firm hold of the present, work and have hope for the future," Mrs. T. M. Stahlman, new president of the Congress of Clubs, says in her first message to the members and affiliated clubs through the current issue of the Congress Outlet. Mrs. Stahlman calls upon the women to show their appreciation of what has been done at the Congress by building for the future.

A large part of this month's "Outlet" is given over to printed reports of the officers and department and committee heads as they were presented at the annual meeting. But there are also other features to claim the attention of the readers, among them an untitled poem by Mrs. Gale C. Hartman; "Dusk on the Island," by Miss Gertrude Guffy, and another called "Is It God?" by 15-year-old Evelyn Schaeffle.

By Miss Grimes

The article on "Financing a Clubhouse," from the Year Book of Women's Club Houses, which was continued from last month, is concluded in this issue, and Mrs. May T. Neff, literature chairman, contributes several short book reviews.

But of especial interest is a finely optimistic article by Miss Helen Grimes, former president of the Congress, in which she suggests as a solution to the present financial crisis that every Congress member begin to spend wisely, taking advantage of the unusual values to be had in the stores.

This mass buying will immediately be reflected by new activity all along the line; the retail merchants will clean up their stock and rush new orders to manufacturers; wheels will spin merrily weaving raw material into beautiful new things and all the old hands will be back again on the job; the stock market will get back on its feet and business will recover its balance, Miss Grimes points out.

The article goes on to say if the organized women's groups would undertake an intelligent study of the economic triangle (consisting of producer, distributor and consumer) they would be performing a much greater service than they are now rendering by organizing committees for relief of unemployment.

DESIGNERS PRESENT NEWEST VOGUE IN PAJAMA ENSEMBLES

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, July 15.—Whatever demerits pajamas may possess and whatever criticism may be leveled at them, there can be no question about their infinite variety. Perhaps in a supreme effort to entice every woman into a pajama ensemble, the dressmakers have created such a multiplicity of models that one of them is sure to appeal to the woman who has up till now remained adamant against the charms and claims of the pajama, whether it be for day or evening wear. Now and again one sees pajamas that are frankly such; but the majority of models carefully disguise the bifurcation, so that the pajama section has the appearance of a particularly full and wide skirt. There are some particularly lovely and graceful evening pajamas, but despite this, one does not see them in great numbers outside of the home or at vacation resorts. In the meantime we hear many arguments as to the power of the pajama to increase or diminish feminine lure and appeal. Such arguments are purely academic and do not seem to influence the desire of woman to don them for outdoor evening functions one bit.

AS OUR CONTRIBUTIONS to the pajama symposium we are sending a sketch of two interesting models. Very sheer black lace makes this pajama ensemble for evening wear. A transparent coat of lace with flaring sleeves trimmed with willow ostrich fronds is worn over the decollete bodice. The edges of the extremely large pajamas are similarly bordered with ostrich, so long that they trail on the floor. There is a belt of bright green ribbon tying in front and the pajamas are over a foundation of flesh colored crepe. Model is from Redfern.

CHANEL IS SHOWING the amusing pajama ensemble also sketched here. It consists of a double-breasted, fitted coat of ruby red velvet and trousers of heavy white satin. The collar and revers of the jacket are very wide and, with the other edges of the garment, are bordered with stitching. The sleeves are slightly puffed at the elbow. The pajamas are drawn in snugly at the knee and fasten down outside of the leg with small buttons and cross tabs.

Julia Cleavenger Becomes Bride Of Minister

An interesting wedding of mid-summer took place this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, when Miss Julia Cleavenger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cleavenger, of Steuben street, became the bride of the Rev. Dwight Guthrie, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Guthrie, of Apollo.

The ceremony took place in the West End Presbyterian Church with the Rev. William A. McRoberts officiating, assisted by the Rev. C. C. Cribbs.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white lace and a veil of tulle cascading from a cap of rose point lace and orange blossoms. Her flowers were white roses, showered with lilies of the valley.

Miss Henrietta Fording, who was maid of honor, appeared in peach chiffon, trimmed in turquoise blue, with which she wore peach mitts, a peach horsehair braid hat, with a band of turquoise. She carried a Dresden bouquet.

Bridal Party

The two bridesmaids, Miss Dorothy Hallock and Miss Wilda Guthrie, wore turquoise blue point d'esprit gowns with peach horsehair braid hats and lace mitts. They also carried Dresden bouquets.

Green point d'esprit was worn by the little flower girl, Ruth Hardman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Hardman, who carried a basket of rose petals.

Serving as best man was Sloan Whitacer and as ushers C. W. Cleavenger, brother of the bride, and W. M. Guthrie.

A reception in the Shannopin Country Club for members of the two families and the bridal party followed. After a Western trip, Mr. Guthrie and his bride will sail for Europe July 23. They will travel on the continent until October, when they will go to Edinburgh, Scotland, where Mr. Guthrie is studying at the University. They plan to leave for the States shortly before Christmas.

COST OF YEAR'S BATS ALMOST $1,500

DID YOU EVER stop to figure what a sizable item baseball bats amount to during the course of a season in the operation of a major league club? The average fan would be inclined to dismiss it as such a minor detail as to be unworthy of a place on the expense list, but as a matter of fact the figures involved are surprisingly large. Some interesting information on the subject came out of a discussion before yesterday's doubleheader at Forbes Field on the types of bats used by the various players.

Pie Traynor

The athletes order bats direct from the factory to suit their own fancy and the club by which they are employed pays for them. You see only a few dozen bats spread out in front of a dugout during a game, and you don't notice a great many being broken from week to week, yet that seemingly small supply is changed or replenished so often as the season progresses that during a full campaign this item costs the Pittsburgh club alone not far from $1,500.

BATS MADE TO order for big league players cost $2.25 apiece, and there is a constant flow of orders for them. For a long time this year it looked as though Capt. Pie Traynor and the other Pirates could not have much use for bludgeons, as they were not hitting the proverbial lick anyhow. But batting slumps don't cause a falling off in the cry for new cudgels. On the contrary the demand increases, as the players blame the bats for the trouble and send out hurry calls for new ones.

Manager Jewel Ens estimates that from the time the Pirates start spring training until the end of the championship schedule each year, the local club uses from 45 to 50 dozen bats. That means from 540 to 600 maces, and at the rate of $2.25 a copy, it will be seen that the outlay during a year mounts to the surprising range of from around $1,200 to approximately $1,350.

THE BULK OF the Pirate orders for new bats each year comes from the Waner brothers. Paul gets from seven to eight dozen per season, and Lloyd almost as many, the orders of the two amounting to about 15 dozen all told, or about one-third of the entire Corsair supply.

This is due to the popularity of Waner models among the other players on the squad. Holding the Waners to be great hitters and striving to emulate them, many of the other Bucs seek to pattern after them by using the same kind of bats, so there is such a demand on the club for bats of the Waner model that Paul and Lloyd are kept busy ordering fresh supplies.

CAPT. PIE TRAYNOR has the distinction of being about the only regular player in either of the major leagues who never orders bats for his personal use. Manager Ens says that during his connection with the Pittsburgh club he cannot recall a single instance in which Traynor ordered a bat. There is a Traynor model, made to Pie's original specifications years ago, but the Pirate Captain never asks that he be supplied with clubs of that kind. In fact, he prefers sticks that have been used by other players, so whenever his turn at the plate arrives he just steps out to the bat pile and picks up any one to which he happens to take a fancy at the moment.

Ervin Brame

THEIR MARGIN OVER the Phillies today was only one point, and just how long they would hold it was only to be conjectured, but for the time being the Pirates had been pulled out of seventh place by Ervin Brame's pinch drive which won the second game yesterday and gave the Ensmen a double victory.

It took the Bucs almost a month to climb out of the berth adjoining the cellar. They were in sixth place on June 19, and on the following day were tied with the Phils for that position, but on the twenty-first they fell into the seventh hole and remained there steadily until they copped the second game yesterday.

IT WOULD HAVE been a tough break for Glenn Spencer if he had lost the second half of the dual bill after pitching hitless ball during the first five innings and allowing only six hits for the entire game. But for Umpire Magerkurth's questionable decision on Chuck Klein at first base in the seventh inning, Spencer might have hurled a shutout.

At that the Pirate flinger was given a tough argument by Fidgety Phil Collins. There's another smart, capable pitcher who has had no luck this season. Though doing high class work in the main he has won only three games while losing nine and tying one, and of his last nine games he has dropped eight.

SOMETHING THAT YOU'LL hardly see again this season has just gone into the books in the American League. Connie Mack's great pitching trio, Lefty Grove, George Earnshaw and Rube Walberg, started three consecutive games and not one of them finished. Though the A's won out, Grove was lifted from the first game of Monday's dual bill in favor of a pinchhitter; Walberg failed to go the route in the second game and Earnshaw was taken out yesterday. Despite the loss of two of the last three contests the lead of the Macks remained today at six games, as the Senators also lost two of their last three.

THE VICTORIES OF Midget Wolgast and Tony Canzoneri may or may not mean that it's a lucky week for ring champions. Benny Bass will give the thing another test tonight when he meets Kid Chocolate for 10 rounds at Philadelphia in defense of the junior-lightweight title.

A year ago the Cuban Negro would have looked like a winner, but three defeats administered by Jack (Kid) Berg, Fidel LaBarba and Battling Battalino showed him to be off stride and took something additional out of him. He will have to come back quite a way to beat Bass, and whether or not he can display his old form is a question that clouds tonight's outcome.

SEVERAL YEARS AGO it was quite the thing for the majority of the larger universities and colleges to have on their football squads a number of players with more than four seasons of prep school experience. Rather than take a chance on boys fresh out of high school, coaches preferred to have athletes who had put in another year or two at some good prep institution.

Jim Marks

Time has brought a change, however, and a good example of the extent of it may be seen at the University of Pittsburgh. There, out of 50 candidates who will report to Coach Jock Sutherland at Camp Hamilton in the middle of September, only eight have stopped at additional secondary schools for an extra year's experience.

THREE OF THIS year's Panther squad were under the care of Jim Marks at Kiski for a while. Jimmy Simms and Jimmy Clark, backs, and Mike Milligan, midget guard, all played at the Saltsburg institution. Bellefonte Academy sent three gridders to Pitt in Paul Reider and Dick Matesic, halfbacks, and Johnny Meredith, tackle. Zola Alpert, who will be a candidate for the quarterback berth, played under Bob Peck at Culver, and R. K. Smith, a guard, who never attended high school, was a student for five years at Staunton Military Academy in Virginia.

VINCE ELDRED, BRAND TOP LOCALS

FLOURTOWN, Pa., July 15.—(AP.)—Aubrey Boomer, British-born professional playing from St. Cloud, France, clicked off two steaming sub-par rounds of 70 yesterday to lead the first day's play in the 72-hole golfing chase for the Pennsylvania open championship at the Philadelphia Cricket Club. The final 36-hole test started this morning.

Boomer's total of 140 set him six strokes in front of the field at the 36-hole mark. His closest contenders were Olin Dutra, Santa Monica, Cal., and Felix Serafina, Scranton, Pa., each of whom had 146.

Auguste Boyer, of Nice, France, and Clarence Ehresman, of Philadelphia, finished in a tie at 147, followed by Ed Dudley, of Concordville, Pa., the defending champion; Joe Turnesa, White Plains, N. Y., and George Smith, Moorestown, N. J., each of whom had 148.

E. Vincent Eldred, of the Highland Country Club, who turned in rounds of 78-75—153, led the seven Western Pennsylvanians playing. Fred Brand, Jr., of Shannopin Country Club, trailed by two strokes, Brand shot a 79 in the morning and a 76 in the afternoon.

Andy Velican, of the Greene County Country Club, Waynesburg, shot 78-81—159, and was followed by Wayne Tobias, assistant at Greensburg, with 78-86—164; Jimmy Devlin, Nemacolin, 81-85—166, and Floyd Ferguson, Ambridge, 86-68—174.

HAGEN VICTOR IN PLAYOFF

TORONTO, July 15.—(AP.)—Walter Hagen fought an uphill battle to conquer Percy Alliss, British pro, at the Wannsee Club, Berlin, by a single stroke in their 36-hole playoff for the Canadian open golf championship yesterday.

The Haig, after trailing Alliss by one stroke in the morning round, with a 73 to the Briton's 72, shot a brilliant 68, four under par, in the afternoon to win the title with a 36-hole total of 141. Alliss followed his par-equaling morning round with a fine 70 in the afternoon.

The ding-dong battle was decided on the thirty-fifth hole. Alliss had squared the match at the thirty-fourth by sinking a 35-foot putt for a birdie 3. On the next hole, however, Hagen's second just failed to go down, and he sank a short putt for a birdie 3 without difficulty. Alliss' second had rolled to within a yard of the cup, but in this crisis the Briton's putting touch failed, and the ball rolled to one side of the cup, giving Hagen the one-stroke lead he needed so badly.

JOHN HEYDLER IN TOWN

The economic depression has not brought a serious falling off in baseball attendances generally, according to John A. Heydler, president of the National League who arrived in Pittsburgh today on a swing around the senior major league circuit.

"We had no inflated values and therefore we have nothing to take out," said Heydler as he discussed conditions surrounding the diamond game.

"During the highly prosperous times baseball people did not boost their prices in any marked degree," continued Heydler. "I'll admit that the attendance in the National League is off as compared with last season, yet there have been many healthy signs. Many parks have been crowded to overflowing this season with many fans turned away. On the whole, however, the attendance has been a bit spotty, but we are satisfied."

Heydler did not wish to comment at length on the subject, but he intimated he would watch the work of his umpires closely as he makes a swing around the western end of the league. There seems to have been many complaints about the officials this year, and the boss of the circuit is making a first-hand study of the situation.

One of the criticisms directed against the arbiters is that they do not hustle all the time they are on the field. Bill Klem has said that an umpire should hustle like the player who is giving his best to win. It is provoking to the athlete and fan alike to see an umpire give a decision on a close play in a matter-of-fact manner, even though he be correct. Nevertheless, the work of the officials in a collective way appears to be improved over recent years.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Max Schmeling arrived back home in Germany just in time to run into the panic . . . Must make him think he's still in Cleveland looking at those empty seats . . . Jess Carver, of this staff, on vacation, almost severed a finger in an accident . . . His story is not very plausible . . . It seems he was carrying a trunk at 2 a. m., and slipped and the trunk parked on his hand . . . Jimmy Belmont, doing roadwork yesterday morning, ran across his arch-enemy, Buck McTiernan, doing the same thing . . . They saved up their fight for the Meyers Bowl ring next Monday night, however . . . Apples Meyers, Bowl promoter, wasn't so keen about this "natural" after McTiernan lost to Ted Yarosz last week and wanted to call it off or shave McTiernan's purse, thereby starting a wow of a row which has made the show . . . Everybody's talking about it, and it looks like the best "draw" of the season . . . Showing how little incidents sometimes grow into big ones.

Mike Milligan, Pitt football guard, who has a summer job as desk sergeant in the Aliquippa Police Station, is a lucky stiff, no less . . . But for an appendicitis operation he would be walking a beat . . . Mike, by the way, gets the Aliquippa job through the fact that an older brother was on the force there and was killed performing his duty, and they promised to do the right thing by Mike . . . Mike, a lightweight guard, will play his last season at Pitt next fall . . . Already he's dreaming about those grueling days in the training camp less than two months hence . . . Ray Fabiani, one of the big shot wrestling promoters of the country, was a visitor in town yesterday looking over the situation and will return the latter part of the week . . . He plans to break in here himself now that Promoter Arthur Sharkey, who flopped, has been erased from the scene.

Julius Pollock, who recently won the West Virginia amateur golf title for the ninth time, is a brother of Mrs. E. W. Stifel, of Wheeling, whose daughter, Fritzi, defeated her the second successive year for the women's crown, and Fritzi defeated a younger sister, Emily, to advance to the final. . . . . Quite a family affair. . . . . A town out west advertises itself to tourists with a big sign reading, "Believe It or Not, This Is Ripley, Oklahoma." . . . . Rip, by the way, leaves late this month for the land of Evangeline, Nova Scotia, in quest of new oddities for his famous cartoon, which appears exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph in Pittsburgh and in 300 other newspapers in the United States and 32 foreign countries. . . . . It is estimated this feature is read by 35,000,000 persons—believe it or not!—HARRY KECK.

GALLUPE TO PLAY

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., July 15.—Peter Gallupe, Canton shortstop, playing for the last two years with the Charleroi Club, of the Middle Atlantic League, will play tonight against Youngstown, O., it was announced here today by Charles Clark, club owner.

DAVIES, FIELDS DRAW

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., July 15.—Willie Davies, of Charleroi, Pa., weighing 114 pounds, and Ross Fields, of Cleveland, tipping the scales at 114½, fought a 10-round draw here last night. The battle was replete with action, but Davies' experience kept him in the running.

MRS. MOODY, PARTNER WIN

LONGWOOD CRICKET CLUB, BROOKLINE, Mass., July 15.—(INS.)—Playing in her first competitive game of tennis since winning the 1930 Wimbledon title, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, of Los Angeles, paired with Mrs. George W. Wightman, of Boston, this afternoon defeated the Boehm twins, Helen and Hilda, of Malden, in the second round of the women's invitation doubles tournament, 6-1, 6-2.

The 18-year-old Malden twins, state junior doubles champions, and making their first appearance in the senior ranks, started off well, taking the first two games of the first set, but were no match for the hard drives of the famous Moody-Wightman combination.

Mrs. Moody seemed a bit out of practice with her service game, making five double defaults in service, but her hard shots and crosscourt placements baffled the Boehm sisters.

FIGHT TO GAIN SIXTH BERTH RESUMED

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The Pirates and Phillies continue their battle for sixth place this afternoon, a single game being the attraction at the Oakland Orchard. Winning both ends of yesterday's bargain attraction, the home guards were able to displace the Quakers, but the Buccos' margin on the sixth notch is very frail. They must win again today in order to stay above their Pennsylvania brethren.

BRAME MAY HURL

Howdy Groskloss is likely to be rested today. The recruit second baseman has two bad legs, but he will not be missing from the lineup long. The strain of playing yesterday's double-header became so great he was lifted in the late innings of the second game. Groskloss favored his bad knee so much he developed a charley-horse in the other leg. He is taking daily treatment and expects to be able to play regularly before the end of the week.

Manager Ens has several pitchers ready for the fourth encounter of the series. Ervin Brame is likely to go to the hill in the event that Manager Shotton stars a righthander, and Ray Benge has had sufficient rest, so the little righthander may oppose the Buccos. Ens also has his two southpaws, Larry French and Charley Wood, in shape for action.

The series will continue through Friday, six games being included in the set. When the Phillies leave for points west, the Braves will come to Pittsburgh to battle the Oaklanders, a doubleheader being scheduled for Saturday.

The Pirates won a decisive triumph over the Shottonites in the opening clash of yesterday. Meine was in good form, while Heinie's mates had little trouble in solving the slants served up by Clise Dudley and Chester Nichols in the early rounds of the battle. The score was 9 to 4.

BUCS WIN IN TENTH

The nightcap brought a different sort of argument. Glenn Spencer pitched like a champion, but Glenn was the victim of a couple of bad breaks in the seventh, and he also was competing against one of the smartest pitchers in the league in Phil Collins. Collins gave one of the most courageous performances seen in the Oakland Orchard in many a day, but at the end of 10 sweltering rounds the skillful twirler had to bow to inevitable defeat. A pinch hit by Big Erv Brame sank the Quakers, 4 to 3.

TWO TOURNEYS CARDED TODAY

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Yesterday Mrs. F. M. Sloan, of Edgewood, president of the Women's Golf Association, led a field of almost 125 in the invitation guest day tournament at the Shannopin Country Club, having a gross 92. Mrs. Carl Van der Voort, of Shannopin, tied second with a 95.

Low net honors went to Mrs. W. S. Brendt, Shannopin, who scored 100-30—70, while Mrs. E. R. Braun, Jr., and Mrs. W. H. Atwood, both of the home club, were tied for second with net 75s.

Tomorrow the Women's Golf Association sponsors a one-day tourney at St. Clair; a team of 27 private club linksmen play public linksmen in an all-star match at Schenley; a big Red and Blue dinner match is to be held at the Pittsburgh Field Club and the Allegheny County Bar Association competes at Shannopin.

Ed Geyer, of Highland, and a number of local men will be playing in the Metropolitan Life managers' tourney, which opens at Galen Hall, Wernersville, Pa., tomorrow.

Miss Madison will start in the 100 meters and the mile. She holds both of these championships.

MANY ENTRIES FOR SUN-TELE NET TOURNEY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Preliminary work upon the second annual Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pittsburgh Public Parks net championships, slated to get underway on the clay rectangles of Schenley, Highland, Frick, Olympia, West, and Riverview Parks here on Monday, July 27, is progressing smoothly and rapidly. Entries, meanwhile, have begun to drift into the sanctum of the Tournament Editor in numbers large enough to indicate even at this early date that the men's and women's singles lists, when totaled for the half-dozen parks involved, will scale well toward the double-century mark.

David I. McCahill, noted local racquet and polo patron, and Steel City representative of the United States Lawn Tennis Association Public Parks Committee, yesterday gave formal endorsement to the Pittsburgh municipal event and in so doing urged all parks players to join battle in quest of the crowns now held by Frank Broida, Frick ace, and Mrs. Jean Arztberger, Olympia luminary.

McCahill will serve actively as a member of the committee soon to be selected and has consented to be on hand at the inter-park series finale on the Frick lot, Saturday, August 8, and in behalf of the U. S. L. T. A. to make formal presentation to the individual park and inter-park winners and runners-up of the more than two dozen prizes to be awarded successful aspirants by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Entries for the men's and women's singles battling will be received by the Public Parks Tournament Editor, in care of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, until midnight of Wednesday, July 22. Names must be submitted on the blanks printed daily on the sports page; none will be taken over the telephone. Entries received so far include those of:

Frank Broida, Frick Park, defending champion; Edward Grant, Riverview; Leonard R. Jacobs, Schenley; S. A. McCorkle, Riverview; Homer Klatzer, Schenley; Robert D. Callen, Riverview; Robert McClurkin, Riverview; Emil Stankevy, Riverview; Merlin M. Chute, Frick; Robert C. Meyer, Riverview; Henry H. Wallace, ——; Burnett, Frick.

Arlington Classic Field Is Reduced

CHICAGO, July 15.—(AP.)—Twenty Grand and Mate, already picked by the experts as winner and runnerup, respectively, in the $70,000 added classic at Arlington Park Saturday, were slated for their final serious training moves today.

The probable field was whittled down yesterday when A La Carte, winner of the Ohio Derby, was shipped back to New York, and Quatre Bras II, from the Three D's stable, broke down in a practice gallop. Chief John, another nominee, was soundly beaten by Joey Bibb in the Dallas purse at a mile and an eighth yesterday and may not go.

Gob Looks Bad In First Workout

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., July 14.—Jack Sharkey, who will defend his American heavyweight championship against Mickey Walker in a 15-round bout at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, a week from today, was outpointed by four of his five sparring partners yesterday.

Sharkey won only one round of his five-round boxing test—the longest ring workout of his current training. With only 10 rounds of actual fighting to his credit since February, 1929, Sharkey clearly shows the need of boxing practice and he was an easy target for his lighter partners.

Johnny Erickson, of New York, arrived today for his 10-round return bout with Jackie Rodgers, local Negro featherweight puncher, at Hickey Park, Millvale, tomorrow night. Rodgers lost to him in the same ring late last summer and suffered an injured eye to boot and hopes to even up for the beating.

Erickson went to the Pittsburgh Lyceum gymnasium this afternoon for a workout to loosen up his limbs following the overnight ride in a sleeper.

Billy Bruns, of Erie, has been substituted as the opponent of Buddy McArthur, of McKeesport, in the eight-round semi-final, taking the place of Ted Ross, of Chicago, who ran out. Bruns recently made a hit with the fans in a close bout with Jimmy Guthrie at Hickey Park.

Between Rounds

Matchmaker Jules Beck is at work on his preliminary card for the Buck McTiernan-Jimmy Belmont battle at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night. Meanwhile Belmont and McTiernan both are tearing into their training for their long-talked about clash, which has the fans buzzing.

Wildcat O'Connor, lightweight, of Carbondale, Pa., wants to show here. He is managed by Harold Donovan, of 14 North Main street, Carbondale, and has boxed Steve Smith, Freddie Haverlack, Nick DeSalvo and Mickey Doyle, among others.

Larry Madge, of Cleveland, boxes Jackie Parvis, of Indianapolis, in the main bout of a card of six six-rounders in Cleveland Friday night, the first of a series of weekly intercity shows which eventually may involve Pittsburgh.

Win of Cleveland Sloop Is Protested

PUT-IN-BAY, O., July 15.—(AP.)—Victory of the Elyria, Cleveland Yacht Club entry, in the first heat of the class R or sloop race of the Interlake Yachting Association's regatta, was being contested today.

It was charged in a protest to the association's regatta committee that the Elyria, in winning the event yesterday, fouled the LaSalle, William Fisher's Detroit entry, which finished second, though a favorite to win.

Formal complaints to the committee were being considered after it was alleged power boat races had been upset because lake steamers were not kept from the regatta course.

Bass Risks Title Against Chocolate

The match involves the 130-pound title, which Bass has risked only once since winning it from Tod Morgan on a two-round knockout in New York on December 20, 1929.

Voigt Sets Pace For Sweetser Cup

ARDSLEY-ON-THE-HUDSON, N. Y., July 15.—(AP.)—George Voigt, of the Winged Foot Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., led the field at the end of the first 18 holes of the 54-hole medal play competition for the Jesse W. Sweetser Victory Golf Cup yesterday.

Voigt shot 36-36—72 to equal par. Tied at 74 were Sweetser himself, who won the cup last year, Mark J. Stuart, of Stapleton, N. Y., Eddie Held, of Great Neck, and Leonard Martin, of Rye, Metropolitan amateur champion.

MRS. ROSE GOLF VICTOR

EASTERN POINT, Conn., July 15.—Mrs. J. B. Rose, of Sewickley, Pa., defeated Mrs. Charles Downey, of Springfield, Mass., 5 and 4, in the first round of the thirteenth annual Shenecossett women's golf tourney here yesterday. Miss Edith Guier, Reading, Pa., and Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, Philadelphia, also gained the second round.

Hogan Medalist In Western Open

PORTLAND, Ore., July 15.—(AP.)—Thirty-one Pacific Coast golfing greats, headed by Eddie Hogan, 21-year-old Portland youth, hog-tied the western amateur golf tournament in the qualifying medal test.

Starting out with his 69, Hogan continued his par-shattering golf yesterday to add a brilliant 71, for a 36-hole total of 140, four strokes under par.

Eye Specialists Order Max to Take Rest

BERLIN, July 15.—(AP.)—Max Schmeling, heavyweight boxing champion, can do no training or boxing for at least two and probably three months, because of the left eye injured in his 15-round title defense against W. L. Stribling, in Cleveland, July 3.

Eye specialists, called in by the champion within 24 hours after his return home, warned him he must take a complete rest for several months. Their decision probably puts an end to negotiations in New York leading up to another championship match in the United States in September with Primo Carnera, the Italian giant, as the contender.

Fight Results

At Akron, O.—George Panka defeated Tiny Powell, 10 rounds.

At East Liverpool, O.—Willie Davies and Ross Fields drew, 10 rounds; Pete Zula defeated Johnny Dale, 6 rounds; Joe Forchione defeated Sailor Lee, 4 rounds; Joe Elphanta and Gilbert Chapman drew, 4 rounds; Big Bill Fairweather knocked out (technical) Johnny Cavalier, 3 rounds.

BOBBY JONES' Lessons in Golf

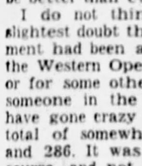
American Amateur Champion and Former U. S. and British Open and British Amateur Titleholder.

The returns from the Canadian Open championship, played over the Mississauga course in Toronto, indicate that most of the boys have experienced considerable relief after shedding the strain of the National Open championship. It is a queer thing in a way, and yet in another way it is not, how the mere fact that it is the National Open, and not some other title which is at stake, affects the scoring of even the best of the field.



Bobby Jones

I have not played Mississauga since 1919, but I think it is safe to assume that it is not an easier course now than it was then, and it is also safe to say that it is fully as difficult as Inverness. The par of the Canadian layout is 72, and previous to the beginning of the Canadian Open par has been beaten only once. In the first round of that championship Percy Alliss, of Berlin, handed in a 67; Armour, Hagen and Cox 68's; Farrell 69, and there were a flock of 70's and 71's. Eleven men beat par by from one to four strokes. Compare this with the first round at Inverness in the National Open, when four men, not one of whom was among the favorites, equaled par with scores of 71, and most of the fellows who were expected to do things, and later on did do things, returned scores of from 73 to 75.

SCORING HIGH

Naturally, before the beginning of the Open Championship there was a good bit of speculation as to what the winning score would be. My choice was 290. Some of the other boys who had seen a lot of championships picked 290 and as high as 294, but there were a good many who were willing to say that 290 would be beaten, or even that the winning score would be better than even 4's or 288.

I do not think there is the slightest doubt that if the tournament had been a competition for the Western Open Championship, or for some other sectional title, someone in the big field would have gone crazy and turned in a total of somewhere between 282 and 286. It was that kind of a course, and not really any more difficult than some other layouts over which phenomenal scores have been made, but THE Open Championship always makes the going tougher and it is always safe to add one or two strokes per round to the scores which one would expect to be made, based on the difficulty of the course alone.

NO WILD SCRAMBLE

One surprising feature of the past Open Championship was that after the last round had gotten well under way it was clearly seen that there would be no mad scramble at the finish. In each of the past four or five years coming down the stretch there have been half a dozen competitors who had a chance to stick their noses in front at the finish, but this year by three o'clock on Saturday afternoon we were all pretty well assured that either Billy Burke or George Von Elm would win. Over this same course in 1920 a pop-eyed gallery had watched four men go to the last green needing a birdie 3 to tie. All afternoon we had been going through the same thing—dashing out to the thirteenth green to pick up some competitor who looked like he was going to beat Ted Ray's score, following him around until he missed his chance on the last hole, then dashing back to pick up another man at the thirteenth. This year Burke finished as Von Elm was starting the thirteenth, and everybody else was either in the clubhouse or out of the tournament.

WOMEN PLAY TOMORROW

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 15.—Close to 50 women golfers will participate tomorrow in the annual match for the trophy donated by the women's golf committee for the championship of Nemacolin Country Club. Medal play under regular handicap will prevail. Mrs. George S. Chaney, of this city is chairman of the women's golf committee, the other members being Mrs. Guy Woodward, Mrs. J. Elmer Johnston, Mrs. A. S. Bickman, Mrs. Hugh K. Fergus and Mrs. S. R. Evans, Jr.

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

NEW YORK, July 15.—I see my old pal, Art (What-a-Man) Shires, will do a comeback this fall. You remember, Arthur got sent to Milwaukee because the big league acoustics were too good. He hadn't played there 10 days when he claimed he was the one that made Milwaukee famous instead of Mr. Schlitz's beer. Anyway, in Milwaukee What-a-Man attended to his knitting and sewed a button on his lip. This constituted his greatest improvement in years. Arthur also tried covering first base instead of the first page, and when that guy doesn't get a hundred yards of publicity a week he is practically in retirement.

Nick Altrock

This fall Milwaukee sells him to the highest major league bidder as an athlete, and not a talking Zeppelin. Good luck to the kid.

THE NEW SUNOCO MERCURY MADE MOTOR OIL

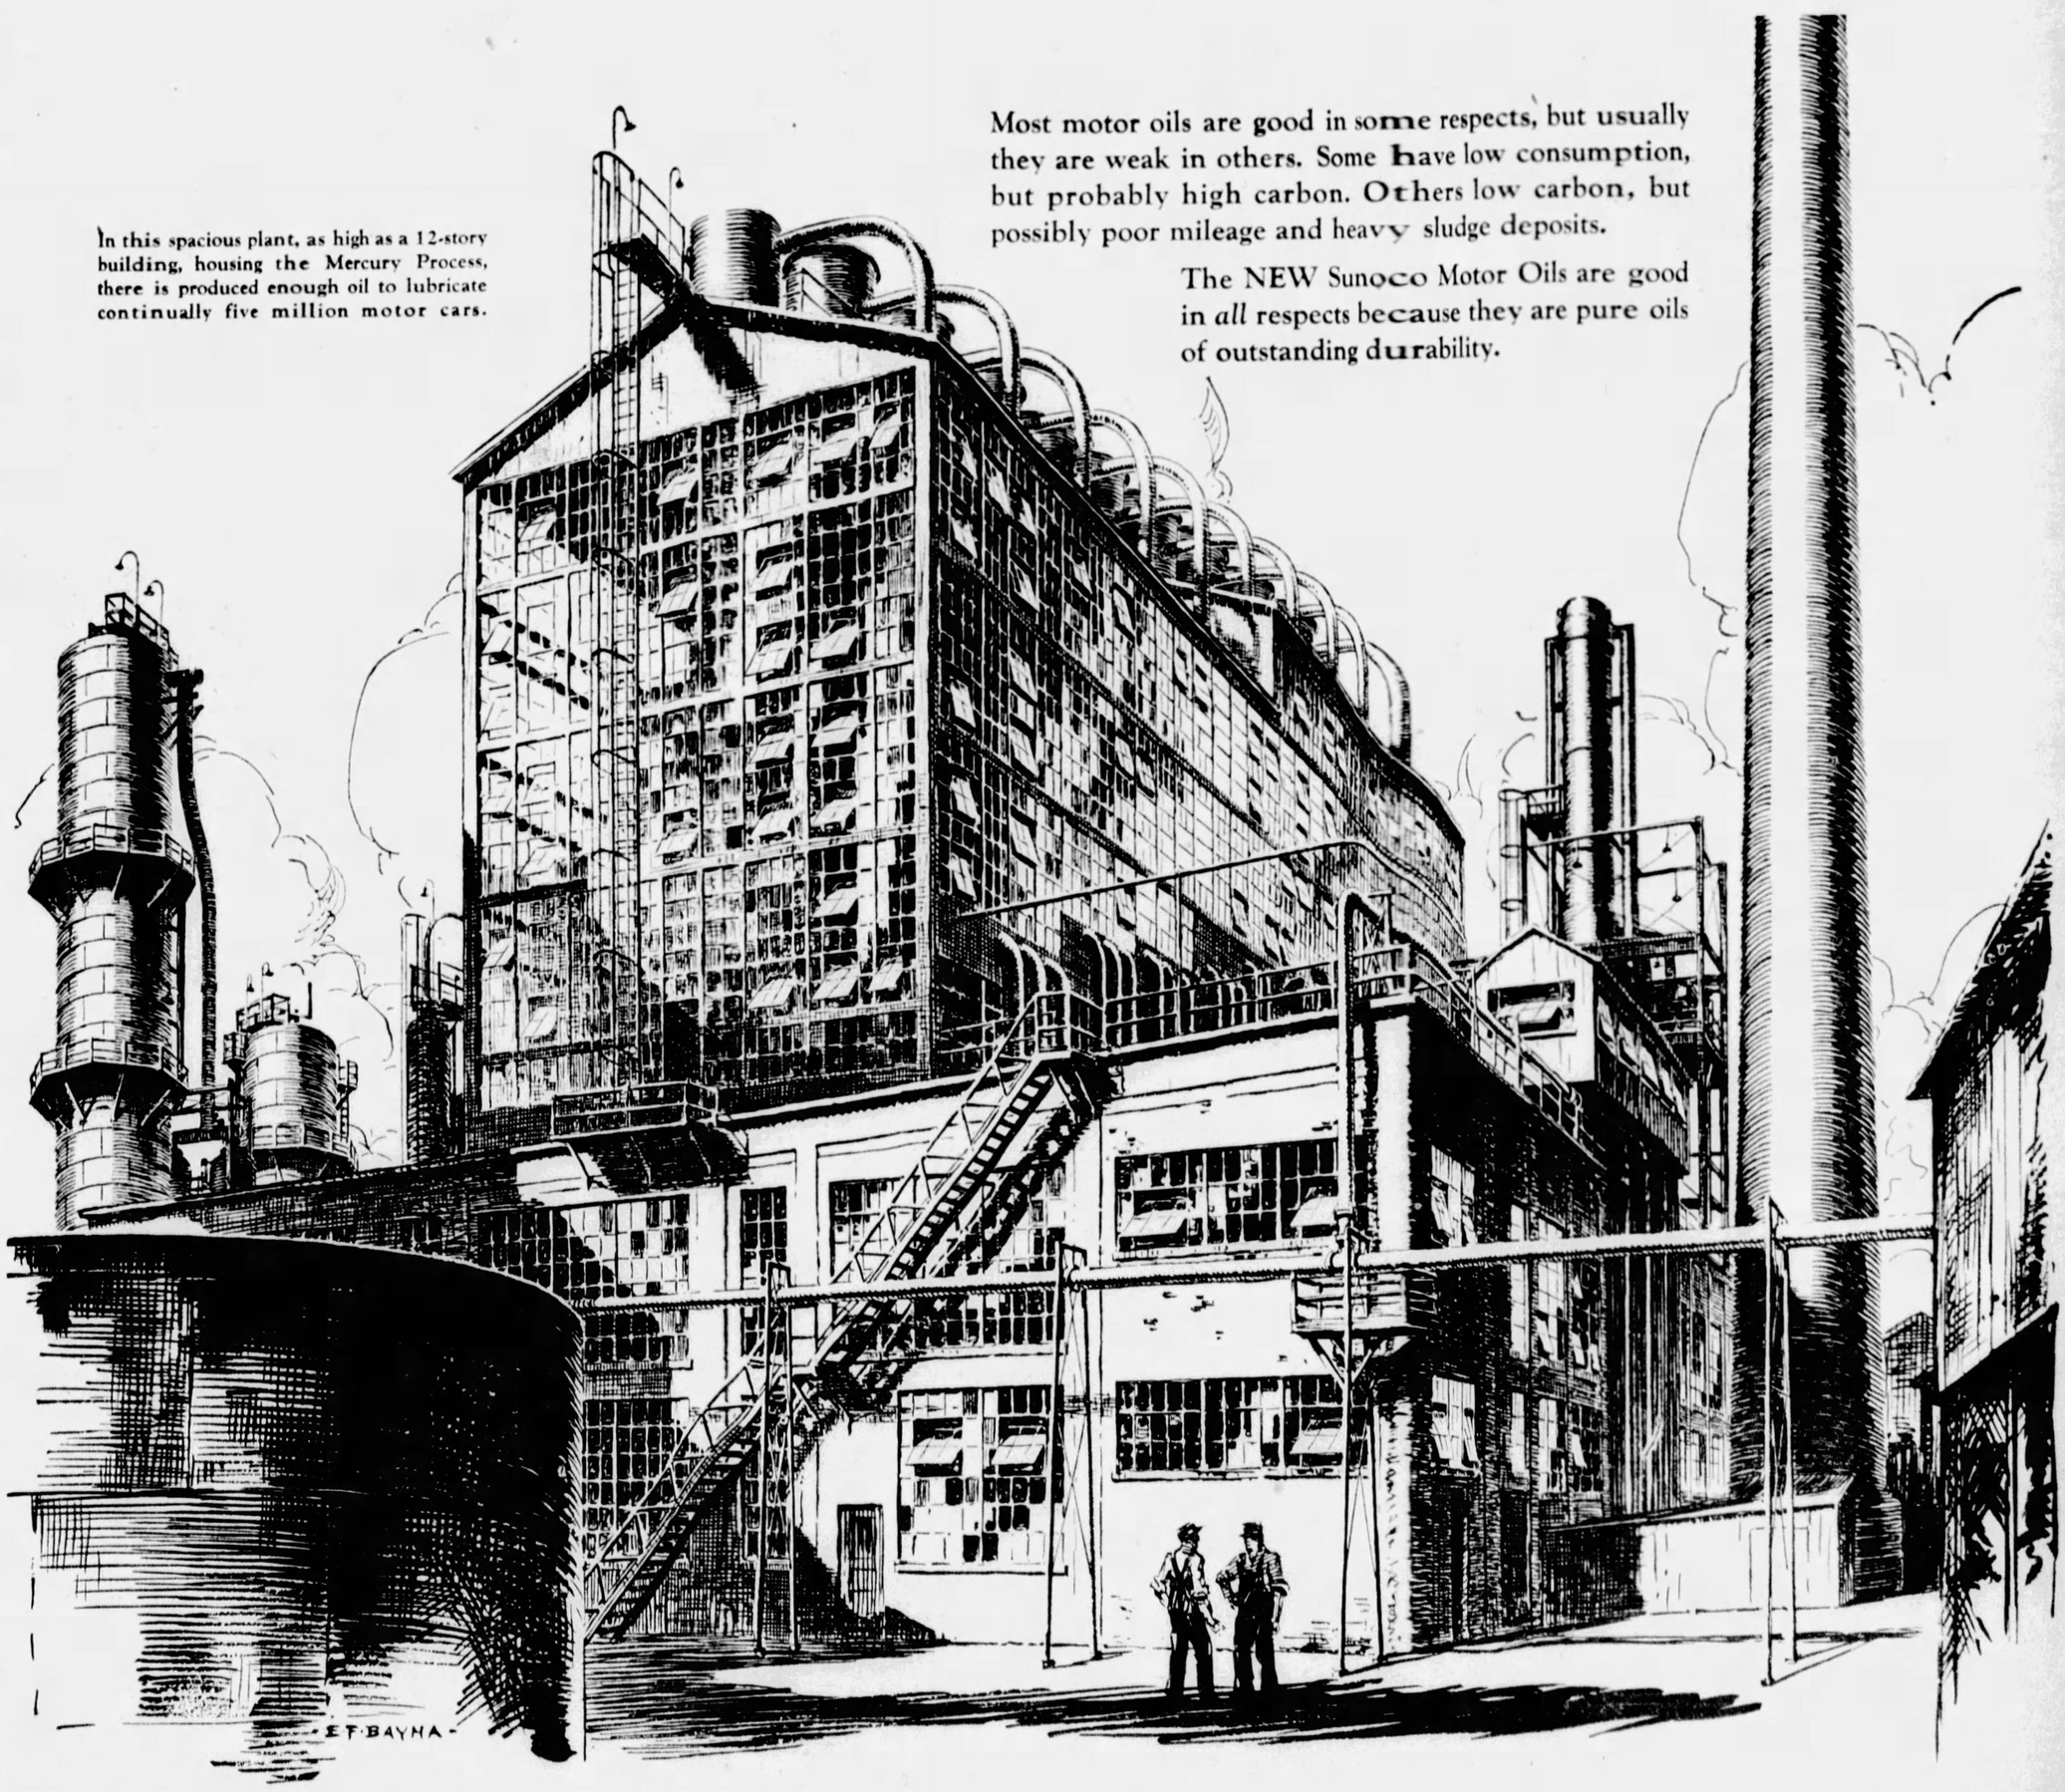
Most motor oils are good in some respects, but usually they are weak in others. Some have low consumption, but probably high carbon. Others low carbon, but possibly poor mileage and heavy sludge deposits.

The NEW Sunoco Motor Oils are good in all respects because they are pure oils of outstanding durability.

In this spacious plant, as high as a 12-story building, housing the Mercury Process, there is produced enough oil to lubricate continually five million motor cars.



EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

STOCK MARKET PRICES BREAK ABRUPTLY

Shares Sag 1 to 6 Points, But List Stiffens Some Later; Rail Issues Weak

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP.)—Wall street was still dominated by the acute financial situation in Central Europe today, and nervousness increased in stock market.

Stocks broke sharply after drifting uncertainly yesterday and most of Monday but more unsettled than stocks were the foreign exchange markets, where an abrupt decline in the pound sterling to the lowest level since 1925 was disturbing. The French franc was strong in the face of weakness in most other currencies.

After declines of 1 to more than 6 points in many prominent issues, the list stiffened a little in the afternoon, and recoveries of about a point from the lowest were numerous. Rails were conspicuously weak.

Selling for foreign account was said to be in substantial volume, and stop loss orders which had been placed under the market during the recent partial paralysis of trading were executed in some volume as they were reached. In the meantime, bears appeared to have had their claws clipped. It was rumored that Stock Exchange officials were on the alert for any attempts at bear raiding.

The definite information given out in important banking quarters last night that further credits to Germany cannot be undertaken by private or central banks, without government leadership, sent glimmering any hopes of immediate alleviation of the German situation.

The steel industry appears to have reached about the irreducible minimum level of operations. The weekly steel reviews indicated some slight curtailment, but the average still holds somewhat above 30 per cent.

Freight car loadings, as reported for the holiday week, showed a drop of 91,411 cars from the previous week, which was substantially less than usually expected for that week. The petroleum statistics were less satisfactory.

Credit was a little firmer. Call money held officially at 1½ per cent, but little was available outside at concessions.

LONDON WEAK AT CLOSE

LONDON, July 15.—Prices at the close of the London stock market were very weak today, with the general tendency downward.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Sterling cables against dollars are quoted in London at 4.84, the lowest since October, 1925. Sterling in New York has sold as low as 4.83 15-16 offered with no bids. This is well below the gold export point, estimated at about 4.85⅜ to 4.85¼, but local circles doubt whether New York will import metal from London.

PARIS, July 15.—Stocks reacted violently on the Bourse today when trading was resumed after suspension since Friday because of the national holidays.

Atlantic Refining Places Pipe Order

An order has been placed for 15,000 tons of seamless pipe for the Atlantic Refining Company for a line in East Texas.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, July 15.—Wheat today equalled the all-time low price record for any future delivery in Chicago, 50⅜ cents a bushel. The new decline, ⅛ cent over night, came in the opening transactions, and was followed by fractional upturns. Price changes were associated largely with nervousness over Europe's financial tangle. Starting at a shade to ⅜ cent setback, wheat later kept within narrow limits. Corn opened unchanged to ⅜ cent higher, and afterward rose all around.

CHANGE URGED IN BUSINESS STANDARD

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Believing that business needs to be psycho-analyzed, Andre Maurois, the novelist, suggests a revision of standards of economic conduct.

Touching on the evil of hiding earnings and assets, this outside observer concludes:

Mr. Rukeyser

"Business morality in the modern world will be sound if there is equality between the buyer and the seller of stocks; that is to say, if all information is placed at the disposal of the public in a clear and comprehensive form. Certain companies do this at regular intervals."

CHANGE URGED

Seeking to draw a basic human lesson from the great deflation, M. Maurois, writing in the Times, adds:

"I am also convinced that they contribute, through their honesty, to a business revival. For the present, the great evil is not lack of money. It is lack of confidence on the part of those who hold the money. Some do not spend or do not invest because they are really poor, but others because they are frightened of the future and because every investment seems to them unsafe.

"It is only through a policy of perfect frankness that one can reassure a public which has just gone through such an ordeal. The average investor must feel that he is protected by very severe conventions, just as he is in the case of money. Artificial inflation of values must be considered a crime as serious as counterfeiting, which it closely resembles. This is the only way to re-establish the confidence of the people in the system, and no society can live peaceably without that confidence."

Is this plea for fundamentally honest accounting, which will put outside stockholders on a parity in respect to reliable information with insiders, visionary?

HIDDEN ASSETS

At any rate, it is contrary to the practice of numerous respectable corporations which habitually tuck away reserves and other assets and earnings in a way that is clear only to the elect. Then in times of acute depressions they sometimes mysteriously tap these hidden reserves, making the process a great mystery to the literal readers of published income accounts and balance sheets.

Fortunately, the New York Stock Exchange, the American Institute of Accountants, the Investment Bankers' Association of America, and other reputable agencies are co-operating to raise accounting standards and practices.

Close Tab Kept On Activities Of 'Bears'

NEW YORK, July 15.—There are indications that the bearish activities are being kept under careful surveillance as a result of the unsettled market incident to the credit difficulties abroad. Instances are reported by which large-scale operators have been asked by important banking interests to refrain from offering stocks in large volume while the present uncertainty continues. Stock Exchange authorities also are said to be scrutinizing transactions closely with a view to curbing trading tactics.

ERRATIC TREND IN STEEL

NEW YORK, July 15.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade, tomorrow will say:

Widespread industrial shutdowns for vacations and inventories together with the generally poor business conditions in most steel consuming lines, have further restricted steel buying and plant operations.

Although erratic schedules make it difficult to estimate the rate of steel production for the industry as a whole, the average for this week is not above 32 per cent of capacity, compared with 33 per cent a week ago, with slight curtailment likely before the end of the month. Present activity is only a little above the low point of last December.

The price situation on finished steel and raw materials offers unusual contradictions. While makers of sheets and strip steel are holding firmly to higher third quarter prices, there is a disposition among producers of bars, plates and shapes to accept 1.60c a pound, Pittsburgh, on the larger orders, or $1 a ton under the quotation that was to apply on third quarter contracts.

Steel scrap has gained 25c a ton in the average price at Pittsburgh for the second time this month, but has declined an equal amount in Eastern Pennsylvania and is weak at Chicago and firm at Detroit.

Oil Stocks' Gain Almost Unbroken Since 1918

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

A TABLE OF STOCKS of crude oil held in the United States at the close of each year from 1918 to 1930 indicates that the amount of available oil increased in every year during this period with only two exceptions. This explains the fundamental trouble of the petroleum industry.

Starting with a stock of 144,336,000 barrels of crude oil at the close of 1918 the industry ended with 512,797,000 barrels at the end of 1930. The year 1926 was marked by a slight decline, but a new high was established in 1928. The high for all time was reached at the close of 1929 with a total stock of crude oil of 535,264,000 barrels.

The reduction in stocks which took place during 1930 was hailed as a sign that the proration efforts had at last gotten the industry under control. It was believed that the basis for a recovery had been established. But new fields soon banished dreams of tranquility for the oil business.

Market Reflects Stocks

FOR SEVERAL YEARS the market for crude oil has closely reflected the size of stocks on hand and the success of proration efforts to pinch in the volume of production from newly developed fields.

The last break in the oil market was attributable to the open violation of proration orders in the East Texas fields. Daily runs exceeded the maximum allowance by 100,000 barrels. This was the impelling factor which resulted in price reductions to record low levels.

In West Texas only 6 cents a barrel is being paid for the lowest grades of oil. The maximum is 42 cents a barrel. These price reductions soon spread to Oklahoma and Kansas fields and have been responsible for the present crisis in the oil industry.

Affects Pittsburgh Business

WHILE THE TROUBLES of the oil producers may seem to be far away and of little interest to Pittsburgh, it must be remembered that many Pittsburgh organizations are dependent on the oil trade for large portions of their business. Pipe makers and producers of oil well supplies are feeling acutely the results of curtailed drilling and the difficulties of collecting accounts from oil operators whose production has been shut down.

In addition the general condition of the oil trade has been reflected in the price of Pennsylvania crude. This oil has not been so severely affected as in Texas and Oklahoma, but it has dropped from over $4 a barrel to a top price of $1.35 a barrel during the past two years.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, July 15.—Issues led the bond market today in a general decline. Trading showed a sharp increase largely because of concentrated activity in a few issues.

NEW YORK, July 15. (AP)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today, with sales, 000 omitted; sales column, United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars:

CHAPTER XVII.

"Sue Thad Parsons?" I said, parrot-like.

"Of course you never get all you sue for—you know that, if you ever read the papers, but you'll get a lot—you might get half of it. I'm darn sure you'd never get less than fifty thousand," she went on.

I saw she was serious.

"You mean for me to go into court and admit before everybody that I let Thad Parsons make a sap of me?" I cried.

"Forget it—the glove is on the other hand. Katie—you'll be making a sap out of Parsons."

"I couldn't sit in court—I couldn't listen to all those letters being read——"

"Zowie!" she exclaimed and giggled again. You couldn't listen to them being read? That's a hot one—think of Thad Parsons sitting there and hearing them read. Probably his little snobbish bride would be there with him—she would choke him and eat you alive all at the same time."

"You have a swell sense of humor," I said. "The easiest way out is to toss them into the fire."

"You sure could buy a lot of glad raiment for fifty thousand," Viola said, as if talking more to herself than to me, "and your lawyer would see to it that he got enough extra to pay his own fees. Listen, dear, that Lawyer Habben who won Cherry Murphy's breach of promise case would just eat this up. I've seen you mushing with Parsons and heard what he has said to you—I'd make a swell witness.

VOICES OBJECTION

"You've got plenty of witnesses. He used to call on you when you lived with your sister—and you told me about the time some other old sweetie of yours went to him and asked him point-plank if he was on the up-and-up with you and he said that he was. There's a swell witness for you—"

"Peter Thompson!" I cried. "Why I'd die first—I'd die before I asked Peter to testify. You don't know—"

The mere thought of it made me speechless for the moment. It wasn't so long ago that Peter warned me, that time he proposed again. He said, without mincing words, that he didn't believe Thad had any intentions of marrying me.

And as for dragging Cora into it! Her husband would be furious at me and at her.

"It's out—I wouldn't sue him if I knew I'd get a billion," I declared.

Synopsis

To just play around, always to have a gay time, is all that is worth while in life, according to the belief of beautiful Katherine Mason, a dress model who has jilted her poor lover, Peter Thompson, in the assurance that wealthy and aristocratic Thad Parsons will marry her. He gives her every reason to believe this. She turns down Forrest Malvern, a rich man of 40, who was once the "sugar daddy" of her friend, Dolly Hawkins, who disappeared. Katherine's roommate finds her in tears, a newspaper crushed in her hands. Kitty had just read about Thad marrying Arline Sargent. Viola urges Kitty to sue him for breach of promise.

Now Go On

"Aw, don't be a dummy, Katie," Viola pleaded.

I have always thought that she was anxious to have me sue and to get into the case as a witness, just for the notoriety.

I shook my head and reached for the packet of 28 love letters Thad Parsons had written to me.

"Think of the publicity," Viola urged; "you'd get all sorts of offers—movie offers, stage offers—you'd make a fortune in a year."

"The publicity is the reason why it's all wet—forget it. I'll never sue him."

Viola looked at me and sighed.

LIES TO CORA

"It's too bad. I see you mean it. A swell chance gone. I wish I had it. I'll go and send that wire now," she said.

I told her I would send a wire in the morning. Viola was one swell pal, but she was so excited over this that she might send any fool telegram.

The next day I wired one word, "Congratulations," and I also sent by registered mail a little packet. It contained all of his letters.

"It's all right by me, Sis," I lied rather glibly, "I was fed up on him anyway."

"Splendid—I was afraid you would be sort of heartbroken," Cora said, with a tone of sincere anxiety in her voice. I assured her that it hadn't even jarred me, which was far from true, but it made her feel much better.

Next day came a letter that gave me a little jolt. It was in a plain business envelope, and printed in the corner was:

P. H. Thompson,

and his street address and telephone number.

I shrugged my shoulders and hesitated. I was half inclined to throw it away without reading it because I suspected that it would be a sort of "I-told-you-so" letter of half condolence and half gloating.

I was wrong. It was a short note, on Peter's business stationery. "Short" scarcely describes it, for all he had written was:

"Dearest Kitty—What evening may I come in to see you and make my third proposal?—Always your Pete."

His letter was on my mind all day. At night I talked it over with Viola.

"He's a go-getter, anyway," was her comment, "and a diplomat. He no sooner reads of Thad Parson's marriage than he goes after you again, and he's too darn wise to mention Thad at all."

"When does the wedding of the peach and the plumber take place?" she teased.

"I'll smack your ears down if you call me a 'peach'," I said, kidding with her. But I became serious at once.

"There will be no wedding bells for Peter Thompson and yours truly—I've got a 50-foot oil painting of myself married to a plumber and living in three rooms over his shop!"

"The little girl is wise," Viola said, as if talking to a third person.

REFUSES THOMPSON

"I've just started playing around, you can bet on that. From now on I'm out for one swell time of it," I cried, leaping up and going to the little desk.

"And you are the cute little cutie who can always have a swell time by merely crooking your finger or giving some rich John one of your 'come-hither' glances," Viola declared.

I didn't answer her, for I was busy writing a little note to Peter. I told him frankly that I appreciated him and his honorable intentions, but that I wasn't ready to marry or even be engaged and that he must go and find himself some nice domestic, cuddly little housewifey sort of girl, and marry her.

Poor Peter.

He must have been hurt, for he never answered it at all.

Every day throughout the week I expected a wire, or at least a letter or card, from Thad Parsons. I felt that the least he could do, after my word of congratulation wired to him and after getting his mushy love letters back, would be to send me a note of thanks and perhaps a little apology or word of explanation.

As Viola and I came out from Mier's establishment Saturday afternoon she pinched my arm.

"Look at Moon-Face and his new shiny car," she whispered.

I looked and saw Chubb Osmund. I'll say it was a shiny car; it looked as if it had just arrived from its foreign factory. Chubb lifted his hat and smiled a wider smile.

I had no time to answer for Chubb pounced over as if to grab me.

"Let's go places," Chubb suggested.

CHUBB PROPOSES

"Bring your boy friend along, Miss Carson," he invited, catching my inquiring glance at her. Viola told him she had no engagement for that evening.

"I'll find a little playmate for you," he promised.

He took us home and promised to call two hours later.

"That's the big idea—going places, playing around," I told her as we were getting ready. A wonderful dinner.

Two hours later Chubb called. This time he had a ig closed car and chauffeur. He also had a chap named Dutton, to be Viola's escort.

An hour later we were having a wonderful dinner at some rather swell place away up on the Boston Post Road.

Chubb was always good company and he never drank too much.

Despite his weight he danced beautifully. As we stepped out on a veranda that overlooked a little arm of the sound Chubb started to get sentimental.

There was a moon and a lot of budding willows. We didn't feel the chill of the spring night because the veranda was glassed in.

"Listen, Kitty," Chubb said, suddenly, putting an arm about me as we leaned on the wide rail, "let's get married."

"Let's walk over to Paris," I retorted.

"Kitty—honey girl," Chubb said seriously, "this is no hooey, it's a straight, sincere proposal—I want to marry you."

I looked at him.

There was no mistaking his honesty, his sincerity.

DAILY SHORT STORY

School Teacher Tricks Shy Lover Into Marriage

Miss Perkins was a bright little woman and one of the best-liked teachers they ever had at the Lower Falls School.

When Bart Mulford came home to visit his father, Squire Mulford, and saw her walking past the old Mulford home, he said to his father, who was sitting by him on the veranda:

"City girl? No indeed, that's our own brand of native girl, that's Jessica Perkins, the Widder Perkins' girl."

Bart puffed thoughtfully at his cigar as he watched Miss Jessica Perkins cross the road and turn down the cross road that led to the schoolhouse.

"The Widow Perkins down below the sawmill?"

Bart shook his head.

"I'm getting old. The last time I saw that young lady she was about 10, I guess, and was diving off the Mill Bridge along with the boys."

"Guess Jessica was away to normal school when you came home last. Don't forget, son, you put in eight years of skylarkin' 'round the country."

Bart nodded.

"Skylarking is scarcely the word, father—toughest eight years I ever put in. It's no sinecure to hunt for oil in hostile countries."

"Wasn't afraid, were you?"

"Certainly I was afraid, Father. Only fools are fearless and we Mulfords all seem to have a fair share of intellect."

"Well, you didn't run away."

"No, it didn't occur to me to run away, we Mulfords know enough to be afraid when there is danger, but we never run away."

SHY OF WOMEN

Bart exhaled a cloud of smoke and tried not to appear embarrassed.

There was a lot of truth in his father's words. Bart was no woman hater, but going from technical school to eight years' wandering in desolate places, he saw few women. Coming home again and settling down as a consultant for the big oil company, he found that he was shy of women.

Squire Mulford snorted at him.

"You had a lot to say about we Mulfords. Well, let me tell you, son, we Mulfords never did sit around waiting for the right girl to come along, we looked around, found the right girl and went and got her."

"Willy-nilly?"

"Any girl with enough sense for a Mulford to be willing to marry has enough sense to be mighty glad if a Mulford goes after her."

"I suppose so."

Squire Mulford, mighty proud of his son, looked at him curiously. Bart was almost 30. The squire was married and had a son and daughter long before he was 30.

Bart, home for a whole month, the first real vacation in several years, went inside and asked Hannah, who had been housekeeper for his father for 20 years, or since Bart's mother died, if his fishing tackle was still in the attic closet.

"Indeed it is, Barty."

She would never call him anything else, not even if he became president of the country.

SQUIRE SENDS NOTE

"I wouldn't let a soul touch it. You'll find everything there, but I'm afeered your rubber boots may be kind of dead, rubber loses its life after a while."

Bart got his tackle and went down to the mill pond to try his luck at casting for pickerel. As soon as he was gone Squire Mulford wrote a note to Jessica Perkins and sent it down by his hired man. The squire was chairman of the school board.

The note was a kindly one and suggested that Miss Perkins come up and discuss the matter of new textbooks with him.

He added:

"Have the Wayne girl drop in and tell your mother you are having dinner with me."

Bart fished until sunset, the best hour of the day, and came tramping home wet, muddy and happy, with a string of pickerel. As he was going around the side path his father called from the vine-clad front porch.

"Le's see, son."

Bart went up on the porch, held up the pickerel and then started, somewhat embarrassed.

"Ho, beauties — don't mind Jessica, son, you knew her when she was a kid and now you're too old to be scared of schoolmarms."

Bart greeted Jessica politely, excused himself and went around to hastily dress the fish for supper. Then he rushed up for a quick shave and change of clothing.

The dinner was an enjoyable one. Jessica knew a surprising number of things about Bart's work abroad, and she knew a great deal about the history of oil.

The squire finished his talk with Jessica about the textbooks before Bart got home. Jessica played on the ancient square piano and Bart got up enough courage to sing with her. He even screwed up enough courage to given her an imitation of Chinese, Malayan and Siamese singing.

The squire retired quite happy. If he could help things along so that his boy would marry Jessica, that would be grand, for the squire knew that Jessica was as clever as she was pretty, which made her very clever indeed.

But the courtship did not progress as rapidly as the old squire hoped it would. Bart told his father that Jessica was about the most attractive girl he ever knew.

"Oh, that's different, I'm just admiring her."

The old man snorted. He didn't dare speak his mind. If you tried to rush things like that it made matters worse.

The squire would have been delighted if he had known Jessica's idea on this subject, but Jessica wasn't one to tell her thoughts.

The truth was, Jessica had fallen headlong in love with Bart, but she did not believe for a moment that Bart, with his world-wide travels and his marvelous position in the city and his host of city friends, would ever consider her for a moment.

However, she was greatly encouraged and hoped, after the school closed next week, that being with him more, she could make certain whether he was just entertained with him or had begun to care for her.

YOUNGSTERS GIGGLE

The school closed Friday. Bart had been down to the school several times to meet Jessica when school was out. This Friday he went with his father and others to hear them speak their "pieces."

Jessica and the squire and Jessica's mother stopped to chat after the exercises. The squire and Mrs. Perkins stated up toward the squire's house. Bart and Jessica followed.

Like school children the world over, some of these youngsters giggled and whispered excitedly. It was a most entertaining sight to see teacher with a "feller."

Bart had given Jessica his report on searching for and locating oil in the Malay peninsular. This had been put into book form with many illustrations from Bart's camera. Bart had autographed it, at her request.

As early as seven the next morning Jessica telephoned up to the squire's and asked to speak to Bart.

"Oh, Bart," she said, "I was showing my book to Dr. Swain yesterday and in the confusion I left it on my desk. Your father has a key to the school house, please stop and get the book for me—I'd be heartbroken if it were lost."

"Surely, Jessica."

After breakfast Bart got the key from his father, put in pails, fishing tackle, a hamper that Hannah had packed and his camera.

He stopped at the schoolhouse, unlocked the door and found the book, as Jessica had said he would, on her desk.

Then he discovered something that startled him.

On the wide blackboard near the teacher's desk someone had scrawled, with chalk, the following:

DERE TEECHUR HAS GOT A SWEETHEART AND HIS NAME IS MISTUR BART

Bart studied it. His face got red. He went over and picked up an eraser and then an idea came to him. He went out to his car and got his camera. He set it up and carefully took a time exposure of that childish couplet on the board.

WRITES REPLY

After this he erased the writing and drove on to get Jessica. They stopped at the village and Bart ran into the drug store for certain chemicals.

They had a very happy day of it, although it seemed to Bart that Jessica was somewhat distrait.

That night Bart developed the films. All but one were scenes taken on the trip. The exception was the writing on the blackboard.

Bart, adept at this work, dried his films with alcohol and an electric fan and made prints by artificial light.

In the afternoon he went down to see Jessica and they walked out by the mill pond.

"When you were 10," Bart said, "you were wearing boy's tights and diving off the bridge with the best of the boys."

"I could do it now," Jessica said, laughing.

"I'll dare you to come down early tomorrow and dive it over again with me."

"I take your dare."

Bart produced the prints, all good pictures. Then in an envelope he handed her the print of the blackboard writing.

Beneath the childish misspelled couplet Bart had written:

"I hope this is true."

Jessica studied it, looked at Bart and said, quite simply, "If you hope so, Bart, then it is true."

The old squire was delighted over the news.

Just "Loose Talk"

Coyne's Prediction of Kline's Acquittal Is Not to Be Taken Too Seriously, It Seems.

Senator Coyne is on such intimate terms with both District Attorney Park and Mayor Kline that when he predicted in a public address last week that the jury which tries Mayor Kline on the malfeasance indictment will acquit him without leaving the box it created an unpleasant impression.

Did he have "inside" information? Did the grand jury lack evidence for the 26 counts on which it indicted the Mayor? Had the sanctity of the grand jury proceedings been violated? Had some irreparable flaw been discovered in the indictment? Did Senator Coyne have reason to believe that indispensable witnesses would be missing when Kline went on trial?

These were some of the questions that his utterance raised.

In view of the friendship existing between Coyne and Park it must have been, from the latter's standpoint, "a bad break"—must have caused him no little embarrassment.

District Attorney Park now answers that he is "not affected by the opinion of anyone who has not heard the evidence." Thus he implies that his friend Coyne's remark was just "loose talk," not to be taken too seriously.

Time for Consultation

Illness of the Coal Industry Has Reached a Stage Calling for a Conference.

When illness reaches a critical stage the family physician does not rely solely on his own judgment, but calls other doctors into consultation.

The illness of the soft coal industry has reached such a stage. The symptoms are unmistakable. On all sides one sees strikes and bankruptcies.

Reporting on an investigation they have just made, Dr. Colston E. Warne, of Amherst College; Dr. William L. Nunn, of New York University, and Mauritz Hellgren, associate editor of The Nation, say:

"The mining industry is sick almost beyond recovery."

A few of the leading operators, after discussing the matter with Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont last week, said they saw nothing to gain in a conference to consider the ills of the industry. On the other hand, leaders of the United Mine Workers are eager for a conference.

It may be that the operators whose opinions were sought by Secretary Lamont, and who for the most part represent large companies, are hopeful that the depression may destroy the business of their competitors and leave them in undisputed possession of the trade.

It may be they fear they will be called upon to make a sacrifice of some kind for the general benefit of the industry.

It may be they fear they will be asked to bargain collectively with the miners, to recognize the union, to operate "closed shop."

The importance of restoring the industry to health is so great—it means so much, directly, to millions of persons, and indirectly to the whole country—that the selfish interests of a handful of big operators must not be permitted to stand in the way.

Another Underestimate

The Highland Park Pool Will Cost More Than Was Expected, But the Project Must Be Completed.

It is getting to be rather an old story with the harassed taxpayers to be told that a project on which they have set their hearts will cost a great deal more than they had been told it would cost; but that does not make it any the easier to bear.

Now comes Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang with the request for another appropriation of $91,000 for the Highland Park swimming pool. It had been estimated that the project would take $150,000, but Lang tells Council $241,000 will be required.

This news is bad enough in itself, but to make it still more disagreeable we have the statement of Controller James P. Kerr that "all activities that will not interfere with the proper administration of the city government must be curtailed if we are to keep within the 1931 appropriations."

There is no doubt that the people are eager for the completion of the Highland Park pool. The proposal of the Chamber of Commerce, made before the Highland Park project was suggested, that a great public swimming pool be established in Squaw Run, and the capacity crowds that have thronged the new pools in the county parks bear witness to the need of additional facilities for bathing.

It is to be hoped, then, that if the additional expenditure called for by Director Lang cannot be avoided without doing a poor job or postponing the completion of the pool, Council will be able to supply the money.

Aliens in Pittsburgh

Americanization Service Is Still Needed, But Not to So Great an Extent as Formerly.

R. L. Polk & Co., compilers of the city directory, report that their canvass showed foreigners from 32 nations residing in Pittsburgh. That is 11 more than the number of nations named in the Census Bureau's list of countries that have contributed to the city's foreign-born population. But after enumerating the people of 21 countries the Census Bureau still had left 1,636 foreign-born Pittsburghers, whom it disposed of by classifying them as miscellaneous.

It would be interesting to be able to look into the Pittsburgh of a generation or two hence, when the melting pot has completed its work and the offspring of these 32 different kinds of foreigners now in our midst have become an integral and homogeneous section of our population. Grant that we may absorb their admirable national traits and may escape any that are not admirable!

These reports on our foreign-born population show the need for continuation of Americanization service.

The need is not so great as formerly, however, for Pittsburgh's foreign-born population is now not so large as it was 10 years ago, totaling 109,072 in 1930, as compared with 120,266 in 1920.

Step by Step

There is such a thing as evolution—in government—after all.

Even the Soviet Communists have to admit that. They are learning they will have to keep abreast of the times.

Communism was all very well 10,000 years ago. It is old-fashioned now. As old-fashioned as dinosaurs, the Great Auk, royalty, bustles and one-hoss shays.

Ten years ago the Soviets made a "new" world out of hand. It was to stay put, a perfect thing. But the law of evolution is no more to be denied than the law of gravity.

So Stalin orders a step forward to Individualism. To the ONE lesson taught by the French Revolution—but which the Communists forgot:

Step by step Russia returns—to Capitalism!

Why Wide Streets Are Dangerous

The Road Hog Makes Them So.

This photograph illustrates the criminal disregard of many motorists in the city and vicinity for one of our simplest and most necessary traffic rules.

That one is operated by some speed maniac—no doubt you have met him—who values a couple of seconds more than he does his own life or the lives of others.

As the photograph shows, he is cutting across the line into traffic bound the opposite way. He risks a head-on collision with fast moving cars, which can escape only by swinging sharply to the right and probably sideswiping the slower moving cars or trucks near the curb.

Road hogs of that type seldom bother you in ordinary streets. There is not enough room. It is on the broad highways that they take chances—and live.

The confirmed road hog cannot be reasoned with, or convinced that he ought to be interested in his own safety, if not that of others.

He can, however, be punished when caught. Any judge who gives him a stiff jail term instead of letting him off with a fine or a reprimand will win the gratitude of ninety-nine motorists in a hundred, and deserve it.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

You Can't Remodel a Husband

One of the bright little day dreams with which Woman has always fooled herself is the sweet conviction that she can change a man's ways after marriage. That the wedding ceremony is a sleight-of-hand performance which will transfer a playboy into a substantial plodder, a lazy man into a hustler, a grouch into a being of sweetness and light, and a philosopher into a one-woman man.

But the only way in which a man ever changes is to grow "more so" as the years go on.

You may throw out a man's college sweaters, burn up all the pictures of his dead loves, put him into the right collar and back him into a dinner coat; but you can never change his morals, his manners or his habits.

You may make him shave off his mustache, subdue the general color scheme of his haberdashery, use the right fork and learn the new dance steps; but you can never change him ABOVE THE EARS.

If a man is a philanderer before marriage, the wedding ceremony will never take the roving look out of his eye.

A man who loves women wholesale or en masse can never settle down permanently to any one woman, and no wedding ring can bind his errant affections, however honestly he may believe it will. Some men's hearts are as solid as cement and stick like glue. But the heart of a sentimental rover will never jell. It is always running over and spilling at some new woman's feet.

And it is the same with other failings. Many a woman has married a man, whose first love was his pocket-flask, and tried to dry him out sufficiently to domesticate him. But only once in a million cases can a drinking man be weaned from his bottle and made into a model husband by the magic of love—and then it's a miracle.

* * *

Most of all, in his little pet habits, is a man as "set" as a permanent wave, today, yesterday and forever.

* * *

If he is a night-hawk, who never wants to hit the pillow before midnight, in his bachelor days, he will be a house-prowler, after marriage, until the day he closes his eyes in his coffin and CAN'T get up and turn on the lights.

* * *

The best way to make a satisfactory husband out of a man is to marry the kind that doesn't need remodeling—to pick out one whose morals, manners and habits are the sort that appeal to you, whose little failings are the kind you can best put up with, and whom you love so much, any way, that you wouldn't want to change him. Because nothing ever changed a man, except old age, rheumatism and death! No woman can change a man—she can only EX-change him.

WHIZZING WORLDS

By Archibald Henderson

Until very recently speeds in the celestial bodies were rated low. Take that slow old bus, the earth. It has an average speed with reference to the sun of only about 18.6 miles per second. The speed of spiral nebulae, even, was not found to be very high—measured in the hundreds rather than the thousands of kilometers. But the new spectroscopic methods have resulted in the discovery of much higher speeds. First 3,000, then 4,000 miles per second. The latest finding of Humason is a nebula with a speed of some 10,500 miles per second!

The singular thing about these nebulae is that they are all recessive. They are traveling away from us—and we are traveling away from them—with vertiginous speed. It begins to look as if the whole universe were being blown up from within by some mighty breath at the center of things. An expanding universe is an amazing thought and one to which we cannot readily accustom ourselves.

Some astrophysicists are in doubt regarding the results of their new spectroscopic measurements. They are not satisfied that the velocities found by computation are the actual radial velocities. Perhaps there is some uncompensated "Einstein effect," due to the curvature of light rays in a finite universe.

In the effort to investigate one phase of this question, Dr. Gustav Stromberg has recently been studying the light rays from the very remote nebulae. The remoter the nebulae, the faster they are receding from us—according to the evidence of the spectroscope. The light rays from some of these nebulae have been on their way coming to us some 70 million years. Have these very ancient light rays grown weary in their long passage through the interstellar spaces? Are they still speeding along at the uniform speed of light, namely about 186,000 miles per second?

In making his investigation, Dr. Stromberg has utilized the well-known principle of aberration, discovered several centuries ago by Bradley. To illustrate, suppose drops of rain are falling vertically downward and you are walking forward at a brisk pace, holding aloft a hollow tube. If you hold the tube vertically, the drop falling into the tube will hit on the rear side of the tube part way down. But if you hold the tube in a vertical plane, but with the top tilted forward by the proper amount, the drop falling into the top of the tube will fall straight through the tube without striking its inside surface. The inclination depends upon the ratio of the velocity of the falling drop to the velocity of the pedestrian.

In Dr. Stromberg's experiment, if the velocity of light from a nebula differs from that of a neighboring star, the nebula would appear shifted a small amount in the course of a year as the observer's own motion varied. But this was not found to be the case.

Further, the astronomers are finding nebulae much further away than hitherto believed. Dr. Robert J. Trumpler, of the Lick Observatory, finds that the Orion nebula is three times as far away as was formerly thought. It is now shown to be distant from the earth some 1,800 light years. It is so big that light takes 26 years to cross it.

ON THE ATLANTIC

By O. O. McIntyre

AT SEA, July 15.—Looking back at America from the detachment of mid ocean, the fears that have recently gripped us all vanish. Distance loosens the tension. Like many others I was beginning to believe that in 10 years our feet would be bound in rags. Or we would sink again in primeval ooze.

The world seemed in frightful chaos. The ocean has been in the same turbulent turmoil many times but today it rolls smoothly on. So it will be with the world. If I'm wrong, I've been tricked by the soothing lull of this vast expanse or by not reading the market pages for three days.

Furthermore the ship's daily promises that Gloria Swanson, who has not yet made her appearance, will positively be seen in the dining room at least once before we reach Plymouth. Since reading this I have been assailed by a most inglorious and unworthy foreboding. Like this:

The dining salon is filled with its fashionables. Suddenly the clatter of dishes and the murmur of voices hush. Two periwigged footmen open the doors of the grand stairway. Gloria advances daintily. Down five steps—and zowie! She comes the rest of the way in a Will Mahoney fall.

A ship's bar in the evening offers a study of peacocks on parade. There is one glossy gallant whose manners seem to be put on like his monocle. He is a fool for hand-kissing, chair fixing and cuff shooting. And on the ship list his name is parted in the middle with a hyphen.

I met his prototype on the Olympic one sailing but he had an unprofitable crossing and at Cherbourg I advanced him the "loan" of his fare to Paris. Then, as on every ship, there is The Gentleman Who Drinks Alone. In a far away corner, he downs innumerable brandies and walks out straight.

As usual, too, there is the loud talking flapper who calls her boy friend for the voyage "Old Thing!" One of those tweedy English persons who is up at daybreak and does all the routine. A timid pair of Japanese honeymooners. A tanned engineer from Indo-China, etc., etc. The customary ship crowd.

The captain of this barque, J. Blancart, a fine figure of a man, suggesting the viking with the squint of the sea in his eyes, stopped in today on his round of calls. His knowledge of English is almost as limited, if possible, as our knowledge of French. Our conversation was reaching an embarrassing low ebb when Mrs. Ray Long, who was also calling, was divinely inspired to pass a box of caramels. That made everything dandy. Just try to talk in any language chewing caramels. And did we all chew!

Unable to get into my traveling bag without breaking the lock I found myself shy a black bow tie for dinner. Yet at the men's shop on deck I not only found a kind of tie I had long wanted but a flint for my pocket lighter, a pad of note paper, a play ball for Billy and a pocket knife. In fact I do not think there is anything one might need but neglect to bring that cannot be procured.

I am told of a serio-comic love drama that concerns a romantic French maid attached to a lady on our deck. A ship's officer sent a bouquet of flowers along with a charming note to her mistress. The page boy, mistaking the maid for the mistress, insisted they were for her. Since, the maid has been bombarding the officer with tender epistles, suggesting moonlight trysts on the upper deck, etc. It has the makings of an oldtime French farce.

* * *

The ship is pitching a little today, and, as the steward puts it, "many are sleeping late." Another way of saying they are slightly mal-de-merish. I made the promenade deck and saw only ahead of me Gertrude Lawrence, a thin vision in nymphist green, struggling to round a turn. After a deep dip quick-stepped me into an old salt, swabbing deck, forcing me to fling my arms tightly around his neck for support. I decided to call it a day. He might have mistaken my gesture.

* * *

Among the second-class passengers I notice a Mr. Colt, Miss Horsey, Mr. Mare and the Rev. Pony, but with a ship acting up this way you can't expect jokes.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

It's Mrs. Smith this time. Plain, little Mrs. Smith, living on an obscure street in Chicago, asking a question that will start a riot anywhere from San Francisco to New York:

"DO MEN EVER TAKE A WOMAN'S JOB SERIOUSLY?"

Mrs. Smith has a job—has had one ever since she was 17. Only daughter in a family with four boys. The boys had jobs, too. But even then Mrs. Smith perceived that there was a difference between boy jobs and girl jobs. Not so much difference in wages, then. But a big difference in the way folks thought about the two jobs.

After five, what did the boys do? Washed up, went out for the evening. Or fooled around, playing cards, listening to the radio—while Mom and Clara May did up the housework. For, of course, everyone expected that Clara May would help Mom around the house—job or no job. Girls always helped around the house. Boys "needed their rest" after working hours. Besides, housework wasn't a boy's job. It was a girl's.

Down in the store, the same subtle difference in attitude toward boy work and girl work. Boys getting raises as the years went on. Girls not getting raises—although they worked as hard. If the girls kicked, the boss sort of kidded them along. Bosses couldn't seem to take girl work seriously. But they listened if boys kicked. Did something about it.

At 24, Clara May married. Went on working because the boy she loved couldn't take her unless she did. Of course, just as soon as he got a little ahead, she wouldn't have to work.

And, in the meantime, he'd help around the house. But he didn't. Somehow, they never do. Presently he was sprawling on the davenport reading, with the radio at his elbow—just as dad and the boys had done. While Clara May cleaned up, got the boiled dinner ready for next day.

Didn't love her? Of course he loved her. Clara May was sure of that. But—he just didn't take her job seriously. Didn't stop to think—perhaps couldn't realize—that she was as tired after her day's work as he was after his. Housework was woman work—the same old argument.

Now Clara May is 32. Eight years married. Two youngsters. Still working, but at home—typing. Has to, to make ends meet. Gets in about five hours a day. Interrupted hours. Someone or something always calling her off. But nobody thinks that's unusual. Women are expected to stand interruption.

Five hours of fidgety, interrupted typing to be wedged in with eight hours of cooking, sewing, cleaning and tending the kids. A pretty full program, that. Couldn't they afford a little help, after all these years? Yes—maybe. But if they did, Will couldn't buy that new car he has his heart set on. And the education fund would dwindle. So Clara May works on—doing her work when and where she can, "after everything else it attended to—"

How long would Mr. Smith? How long would any man work under those conditions? Not a day. Everybody has to walk on tiptoe if Dad works at home in the evenings. But Mom—well, Mom's Mom.

Why is Mom Mom?

Why isn't Mom as much of a worker as Dad . . . why shouldn't her work be regarded as seriously as Dad's . . . why shouldn't she enjoy the same consideration?

WHY SHOULD THE WORLD STILL CONSIDER A WOMAN'S JOB "DIFFERENT" FROM A MAN'S JOB?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

A Query

There are such countless hosts of words
That all of us employ;
They flutter up like singing birds
At every little joy.
Upon the lips their lilts are gay,
They spread their rainbow wings
About us through each sun-sweet way
For all life's little things.

But when some splendid bliss wells up
From being's deeps unguessed
To brim the spirit's lifted cup
With dreams of length possessed,
Where then are all the words we kept
For every small event,
That to our lips so blithely leapt
In hours of content?

Why do once-ready words grow dumb
And, fluttering, depart
When, dearest, to my door you come
And joy sings in my heart?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. MUNDY

The constant complaints which you take home with you at night bore your family.

You have probably dwelt on the same subjects so long that they are tiresome because you have evolved no new ideas about them.

Your rehash of objections to conditions you meet every day in your place of employment does not add to the home folks' good opinion of you.

You have become so saturated with these thoughts that you are unfit yourself for constructive thinking along other lines.

Your mind is becoming set in the opinion that you are not receiving a fair deal.

You are not as alert to do good work, your efforts are not consistent with the good of your organization.
